Australia Discusses Bombing

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Australia said today that U.S. bombing of North Vietnam should only be stopped when Hanoi gives "convincing proof" that such a step would lead toward a peaceful settlement of the war.

"The one authority that can say with certainty what would happen when bombing stopped is the government of North Vietnam," Australian Foreign Minister Paul M. C. Hasluck told the 122-nation General Assembly.

"The only words that have been heard from Hanoi are the words of contumely and rejection," he said.

Hasluck noted that the United States has already offered to halt the bombing as a first step toward negotiations, "provided that some reciprocal gesture is made, or some reciprocal restraint observed by the other side."

Australia has contributed 6,000 men to the allied force in Vietnam.

The assembly winds up its annual policy debate today with more than a third of its members demanding a halt to the U.S. bombing of the Communist North.

Although not on the agenda of the 122-nation assembly, Vietnam has dominated the debate. Prior to the closing speeches today, calls for a bombing halt came from 43 nations, most of them in Communist East Europe, Scandinavia, Asia or Africa.

Most of the behind scenes maneuvering so far has centered on the Arab-Israeli deadlock, scheduled to come before the Assembly first after the policy speeches.

The Asian members held a closed-door meeting late Thursday on the Middle East issue. Informed sources said most of them want to delay debate on the question until they see what comes of U.S.-Soviet negotiations to put it before the Security Council.

T.F. Man Is Killed Near Soda Springs

A 79-year-old Twin Falls man was killed Thursday afternoon 17 miles north of Soda Springs when his car went out of control on a gravel road while on a fishing trip.

Kuichi Nakamura, 339 6th Ave. W., was driving at high speed on the Government Dam Road about 5 p.m. Thursday when his car left the road, according to Caribou County sheriff's officers. He was killed when thrown from the wreckage. The car overturned.

Mr. Nakamura was born Dec. 4, 1888, in Hiroshima-Ken, Japan, and came to Twin Falls from Idaho Falls about 30 years ago. He lived alone.

The accident raises Idaho's 1967 traffic death toll of 212 or four fewer than on the same date last year.

Funeral arrangements for Mr. Nakamura are pending at Reynolds Funeral Home.

DEFYING LOGIC, THIS four-passenger Navion did not overturn when it crashed during takeoff at the Burley airport at 8 a.m. Friday. The craft, owned by Alma Clark, Cassia county assessor, struck the railroad tracks, bumped across four lanes of Highway 30 with the propeller leaving marks in the roadway, and hit a fence before stopping about 150 feet into a cornfield. Burley Men Unhurt After Plane Crash

BURLEY — The Cassia county assessor and four of his sons walked away unharmed Friday morning after his four-passenger plane crashed during takeoff at the Burley airport.

Alma Clark and his sons were taking off at 8 a.m. for the Primitive area when the Navion failed to get airborne and crashed in a cornfield after first bumping the railroad tracks and leaving propeller marks across the four lanes of Highway 30 east of Burley.

Federal aviation officials said the plane surprisingly never overturned, but kept upright during the time it struck the train tracks, crossed the highway and hit a fence.

They also noted it was unusual that the damaged plane could have crossed over the four-lane highway with its propeller banging on the ground and not have collided with any vehicles.

A highway accident did occur, however, when State Policeman Charles Peugh's car was struck from the rear by a motorist whose windshield was covered with frost.

Patrolman Peugh was knocked to the ground as he was getting out of the 1966 Dodge police car he had driven to the site. His vehicle was struck by a 1964 Comet whose driver, Diane Martin, 22, 601 E. 15th St., Burley, was unable to see him because of the rising sun and frosted windshield.

Miss Martin was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital and complained of chest injuries.

Mr. Clark and his sons, Gordon, Tony, John and Alvin, had the plane heavily loaded with fishing equipment. They had intended to land at Engline Creek on the Salmon River. No flight plan had been filed, FAA officials said.

Mrs. Clark, who had brought them to the airport, was just driving away from the airport as the crash occurred, so she stopped where the plane landed about 150 feet into the cornfield from the highway and the men's equipment was put back into the family car.

The pilot reported he couldn't gain enough "pilot air" and there was heavy frost on the wings of the plane.

Child Retardation Center Plans For T.F. Area Get Attention

State and federal funds are ready and waiting and construction on a local center for child development could begin in Twin Falls immediately, Dr. John Marks, superintendent of the Idaho State School and Hospital, Nampa, told local members of the South Central Family Health and Education Center Thursday night.

Dr. Marks urged, however, that the community take time in starting construction to provide a full and well rounded program that will serve more than just basic needs.

To do this, Twin Falls must yet provide $50,000 in local funds which would assure a $250,000 facility in the community. The community now has $13,000 from Harbor House Association and $12,000 from the South Central Idaho Medical Association and a 2.5 acre site donated by the city. This will cover the basic retardation center building, a $175,000 facility exclusively for the day care and treatment of retarded and handicapped children.

Building plans just completed by the Idaho Department of Health were shown during the meeting. The basic plan which could be built immediately would provide six offices and four classrooms and kitchen and dining facilities.

The more extensive plan which would be provided for $75,000 in local funds would include 12 offices, larger kitchen and dining areas, two larger general purpose rooms and four classrooms. This could be expanded from the $250,000 to a $450,000 center with the addition of a gymnasium and a 20-bed residential area which could also be used as a detention area for youngsters under court custody.

Dr. Marks stressed that there are no geographic limits involved in the three proposed Idaho centers and the Twin Falls center would be available to any person in the state who might be able to use the services.

He said he hoped that Twin Falls would be ready to begin construction on a center by Jan. 1, which would cover at least the first two phases of the program.

John Angerbauer, city commissioner, reported on site selection work. He said the 2.5 acres promised by the city is not sufficient for a more extensive center than the origional basic plan. The committee, he said, has found four sites ranging in size from six to 14 acres and these would be available. The city, he said, will move to acquire one of the sites if the family center organization can decide what size site is desired.

Dr. Marks said he felt for future growth and the eventual center design the committee should be thinking in terms of at least the 14 acre size site.

He also suggested the South Central Family Health and Education Center officers submit a list of some 10 to 15 members to act as an advisory board or executive board. These members will be approved by the Department of Health. He said, a smaller group would be able to move ahead on center plans.

Thomas G. Nelson, chairman, Ray Lincoln, vice chairman, and Pauline Fix, secretary, will select the names of 15 members for official appointment to the advisory board of the center organization.

Also attending the meeting in the Idaho Power Co. Auditorium was Gen Merrill, state director of retardation programs for the Idaho Department of Health.

Approximately 75 members and other interested persons also attended the meeting, the first since the South Central Family Health and Education Center organization was formally organized last month.

Rusk-Fulbright Conflict Sharpens As Criticism Of War Policies Grows

By ROBERT GRAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The conflict between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Sen. J.W. Fulbright is sharpening as Senate criticism of the administration's Vietnam policies grows.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has spearheaded that criticism for months.

While Rusk has been his urbane and unruffled self throughout most of the debate, there was a new edge to his voice and a new bite to his statements Thursday as he hit back at Senate critics—particularly Fulbright.

"That is not true," he replied when asked at a news conference about Fulbright's remark that the United States was at fault in the United Nations' inaction on Vietnam.

And, noting Fulbright's earlier support of the administration on Vietnam policy, Rusk said: "If people change their minds, it's fair to ask on which occasion they were right."

Fulbright, asserting "I believe I am right now," later resumed on the Senate floor his objections to the administration's war policies.

The Arkansas Democrat again argued that U.S. reasons for being in Vietnam have not been made clear. He held there was a conflict in basic American policy.

The administration contends that defending South Vietnam from Communist aggression is necessary to prevent the loss of Southeast Asia, Fulbright said, and also sets the goal of withdrawal after self-determination for the South Vietnamese is assured.

Maintaining a defense perimeter in that country would require a permanent American presence, he said, and U.S. forces would have to stay "come hell or high water."

Referring to critics of the administration policy, Rusk said those who "place in question the credibility of the pledged word of the United States under our mutual security treaties would subject this nation to mortal danger."

Without direct reference to Rusk, Fulbright told the Senate it was wrong to argue that critics hampered the war effort.

He endorsed a speech in which Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said President Johnson was not immune, because of his office, from criticism for the conduct of the war.

Javits said he was disturbed by Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen's contention earlier this week that the Chief Executive should not be subjected to severe criticism in the eyes of the world.

Cenarrusa Asks Plane Purchase

BOISE (AP)—Purchase by the state of two airplanes to provide swift transportation for Idaho officials was proposed today by Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa.

A licensed private pilot, Cenarrusa said the plan would save the state money because high-salaried executives would spend less time in travel.

Cenarrusa said two suitable planes could be bought for about $200,000.

Navy Jets Place Ring Of Attacks On Haiphong

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of U.S. Navy jets placed a ring of attacks tightly around the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong Thursday.

The targets—which U.S. spokesmen said were heavily damaged—included two shipyards previously on the Pentagon's restricted list, the assembly plant where Russian missiles and helicopters are uncrated, a power plant outside the city, and the MIG airfield at Cat Bi just to the southeast.

The two shipyards, both less than two miles from Haiphong's geographic center, make and repair river craft and supply barges up to 150 feet long. U.S. headquarters estimated that together they amounted to 8 percent of North Vietnam's boatyard and small ship repair facilities.

Although bad weather covered much of North Vietnam, there were frequent breaks in the cloud cover, and American pilots got in 141 missions, about one third more than they have been flying in the past few days.

Although the vital rail lines north of Hanoi were covered by clouds, supply lines to the south were exposed and took a heavy pounding. U.S. Headquarters is determined to get in as many strikes as possible before the monsoon weather gets really bad later this month.

Ground action reported in South Vietnam was generally light and scattered, but harassing Communist attacks continued.

A civilian bus was blown up by a mine near the old Imperial capital of Hue and nine civilian passengers were wounded. A small spotter plane was shot down by guerrilla riflemen, but the injured pilot was dragged from the wreckage by a helicopter crew which witnessed the crash.

Auto Workers Reject New Proposal

DETROIT (AP)— The United Auto Workers union has rejected a new proposal in contract bargaining with the strikebound Ford Motor Co., but a high union source said today "progress is being made that could lead to impending action."

Rejection of the proposal was reported by a well-placed company source who said "it was a generous offer. They—the talks—aren't going anywhere right now."

While a union source said there had been progress toward ending a 37-day strike, he added that there have been no face-to-face meetings of the top bargaining teams since a news blackout was clamped on talks Tuesday night.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther heads the union team while Vice President Malcolm L. Denise bargains for Ford.

Mindful of the blackout, which sometimes in past contract years has meant settlement is near, both sources were reluctant to elaborate on the separate positions of the two sides.

DC-9 Jet Service To Bypass Twin Falls

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Executive Editor

Non-stop DC-9 jet service between Seattle - Portland, Boise and Salt Lake City — skipping Twin Falls — has been granted to West Coast Airlines by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Announcement of the approval of West Coast's plan to provide pure-jet service from the coast to Salt Lake City was made late Thursday.

The approval by the C.A.B. came as they granted the airline an exemption rather than a change of service pattern. Under section 401 of the act under which the airline operates, it was necessary that any plane between Boise and Salt Lake City would have to land at Twin Falls.

Now, with the exemption granted, the West Coast jets will be able to make the flight without necessity of stopping at Twin Falls. The landing here, of course, is not possible because the present runway is not long enough to provide for this type plane to operate commercially.

There was a provision in the exemption which the C.A.B. attached and this provided West Coast must operate at least three round trips a day to Twin Falls. It is assumed that this stipulation provided for the present F-27 prop-jet service.

Officials of the airline said that details of the DC-9 jet service overflying Twin Falls would be announced "in the next few days."

The communication from the C.A.B. read in part:

"Upon consideration of the pleadings we have decided to grant West Coast Airline's application on a subsidy-ineligible basis. However, we will grant an exemption instead of a change in service patterns.

"Accordingly it is ordered that West Coast be and it is hereby exempted from section 401 of the act insofar as such section would otherwise prevent the carrier from providing non-stop service between Seattle and - or Portland on the one hand and Boise and - or Salt Lake City on the other and between Boise and Salt Lake City.

"That the exemption granted herein shall be operative only as long as WCA provides three round trips a day to Twin Falls.

"That the exemption granted

Meeting Called To Forge Compromise In Haulers' Strike

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Pennsylvania state official today called a meeting to forge a compromise from the remnants of a shattered truce in the two-month old strike by independent steel haulers.

Joseph Kelley, personal secretary to Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, set the meeting for Saturday in Pittsburgh beteen the same parties that drafted a proposed settlement in marathon bargaining Monday and Tuesday.

Rocks, bullets and fire bombs, meanwhile, showered trucks in three states and an explosion and fire destroyed a terminal owned by the head of the National Steel Carriers Association.

Kelley's meeting was the first attempt to revive an agreement that was crippled by dissatisfaction among trucking companies.

The trucking company executives have split into two groups. A spokesman for one said it was opposed to a peace plan drawn in Pittsburgh. The strikers are voting on it anyway.

Spokesmen for the second group of companies said they also are opposed to the original recommendations and have offered a compromise. The strikers said they wouldn't even vote on the substitute.

The explosion rocked a small terminal of B&P Motor Express Inc. at Fallston north of Pittsburgh just before dawn. Firemen said the building was a total loss. B&P is headed by Howard Miller, chief of the National Steel Carriers Association.

At Greensburg, east of Pittsburgh, state police reported that windshields on 10 trucks were smashed by rocks. No one was hurt.

Snipers fired on two strike-breaking trucks and a car near Middletown, Ohio. Three firebombs were chunked at a parked truck near Youngstown. No one was hurt.

William Kusley of Gary, Ind., the man who organized the strike, said no one is going back to work without a settlement.

Kusley ordered his men to begin voting in the eight affected states. Results of the balloting aren't expected until the weekend, but a source in Pittsburgh said early returns indicate "a favorable response."

Kusley said, however, the proposal must be accepted by all parties.

New outbreaks of violence flared in two states as officials of the 68-member national Steel

FRIDAY THE 13TH UNLUCKY? Never. Not when you come prepared for the worst. This is what Harold Sampe did Friday. And if rabbit's feet aren't enough, you can bet he's got his fingers crossed, a four-leaf clover in his pocket, the black cat at home is locked up, the horseshoe's over the door and there are no ladders out of place. So he figures he's got it made. But when this picture was taken he still had 13 hours left in the day. Good luck, Mr. Sampe.

Equitable Savings Office Opens Here

"This is a resurrection, an exercise in faith — faith in the economy of Idaho and the people of this area — and not a ribbon cutting or opening," commented John D. Silva, Idaho's Commissioner of Finance Friday during ceremonies officially marking Equitable Savings and Loan's existence in Twin Falls.

A ribbon was cut and the doors did open Friday before a gathering of about 50 Equitable officials and residents of Twin Falls.

Mayor Egon Kroll officiated at the ribbon cutting, brandishing a huge pair of golden clippers. Mr. Kroll officially welcomed the institution to Twin Falls during the short ceremony in front of the Equitable Savings and Loan office, formerly Idaho Savings and Loan.

C. C. Kraig, senior vice president of the firm, handed Mr. Silva a check for the remainder of mortgages of the defunct Idaho Savings and Loan at the conclusion of the event.

Equitable has purchased some of the assets of Idaho Savings and Loan, totaling $7.694 million and has opened all four Idaho offices. Mr. Kraig said that Equitable is not new to Idaho—that it has had a license to operate in this area for a number of years.

The firm now has 3 branches in Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

Mr. Kraig gave credit to Mr. Silva and Gov. Don Samuelson for initiating the plan, for purchase of Idaho Savings and Loan's assets. He noted that with so many shareholder funds tied up, his firm could not isolate themselves and ignore the people of this area.

He said that his firm will not be unfair competition—that they will invest depositors' money in the best loans possible and whenever possible in Twin Falls. Mr. Kraig introduced George Young, who is responsible for coordinating Equitable's Idaho branches, and Ernest Burby Jr., local Equitable manager.

Throughout the day coffee, punch and cookies were served and door prizes were given away in the refurbished office on Shoshone Street East.

Railway Post Office Service Dies In Area Early Friday

POCATELLO (AP) — Railway post office service in this area died here at 2:20 a.m., and a new air taxi service for first class and air mail began in Southern Idaho Thursday night.

It's all part of the nationwide plan by the post office to do away with railway post office cars, and carry first class mail by plane. Jack Trimming, local postmaster, said the goal is to insure next-day delivery anywhere in the United States for first class mail.

Passenger trains passing through Pocatello carried railway post office cars, on which railway post office clerks "worked" the mail, picked it up, and dropped it off on stops along the way. The last ROP car to arrive in Pocatello was on train twelve, which arrived here from Huntington at 2:20 a.m.

The first post office air taxis arrived in Pocatello Thursday. The taxis carry mail to and from Boise and Salt Lake City, major mail distribution centers under the new set-up. Eastbound mail from Southern Idaho goes to Boise. Mail for the west is flown to Salt Lake City.

There are two air taxi routes serving Southern Idaho. The air taxis fly six days a week. One flight originates in Idaho Falls at 9:25 p.m.

The other flight originates at Twin Falls at 9:05 p.m. and arrives at Pocatello at 9:50 p.m.

Idaho Soldier's Body Recovered

The plane was bound from Ft. Eustis to Harrisburg, Pa. when it crashed in 20 feet of water.

"The exemption granted shall become effective on the date of this order (at once) and continue in effect until 60 days after final decision in the re-opened Pacific northwest - southwest case.

"This order may be amended or rejected at the discretion of the board without hearing."

In the present situation, Twin Falls area passengers will be able to fly prop-jet equipment to Boise and board a jet there for the hop to the coast. Schedules will be worked out, airline spokesmen said.

Only recently, city officials and members of the Twin Falls airport commission petitioned the C.A.B. to not grant West Coast flyover permission. They feared this might set a precedent which, should the Twin Falls airport be large enough for jets at some future date, would be hard to change.

Recently West Coast officials announced plans to purchase several new F-228 jets—capable of carrying about 50 passengers—and this type plane could operate from the present Twin Falls airport with minimum of airport change. The first plane of this type is scheduled for delivery in May of 1970.

Synopsis, Farm Summary

A cool front moving into Western Oregon and Washington this morning will cause occasional rain and gusty winds this afternoon and tonight in western and central valleys and tonight or early Saturday in eastern valleys. For most of the area rainfall is expected to be light with somewhat heavier amounts in the upper Snake River Valley. Temperatures will be a little milder tonight but generally cooler Saturday with highs in the 50s in most of southern Idaho and in the low 60s in the west.

Clear and cold weather is indicated for Saturday night with freezing temperatures in most valleys, probably dropping into the 20s in colder locations. This will be followed by fair weather and some warming Sunday and Monday, but Sunday night may be as cold as Saturday night in much of Southeastern Idaho.

Most of Southern Idaho was much cooler yesterday and last night. Afternoon readings were 10 to 20 degrees cooler than Wednesday except near the Oregon border and overnight lows showed nearly as much cooling, with readings mostly in the upper 20s and lower 30s this morning.

Five-Day Forecast

A disturbance moving through Southern Idaho this afternoon and tonight will be followed by a period of high pressures, mostly fair weather and drier air through the weekend and into the first part of next week.

Temperatures Saturday through Wednesday will average near normal in Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho. Cooler temperatures Saturday will be followed by slowly rising daytime temperatures through Monday or Tuesday, probably cooling a little about Wednesday. Coldest night temperatures will likely occur Saturday night or Sunday night with lows in the 20s in higher valleys and in the upper 20s and low 30s in the principal agricultural valleys. Temperatures should be a little milder on succeeding nights. Normal maximum and minimum temperatures for this period are Boise 65-38, Gooding 65-38, Twin Falls 67-36, Burley 64-33, Pocatello 64-34 and Idaho Falls 62-33.

Except for a chance of showers in eastern sections early Saturday and possibly scattered showers about Wednesday there should be little or no precipitation during this period. Dry weather will be favorable for curing hay and for combining remaining beans and seed crops. Digging potatoes and beets should make good progress, although this will be delayed somewhat by wet ground in parts of the Snake River Valley above Idaho Falls.

Sunshine will probably average 70 to 80 per cent of possible with most cloudiness and wind Saturday and about Wednesday.

Senate Approves Law Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved Thursday extension until June 30, 1971, of a 1962 law authorizing qualified persons to continue to live on unpatented mining claims.

Without the extension, the act will expire Oct. 23. The House is expected to consider the measure next week.

Sen Frank Church, D-Idaho, sponsored the original law and was co-sponsor of the etension measure.

Water Talks Featured By Burley Group

BURLEY — Supplemental water for Southern Idaho was the topic discussed recently at a meeting at the Ponderosa Inn by groups interested in supplemental water.

Groups attending the meeting had previously been trying individually to get supplemental water to their respective areas, but haven't been getting anywhere. They are the Oakley Fan, Lower Goose Creek, Milner-Cottonwood area (Murtaugh-Hansen pumping area), Raft River Fan and Salmon Tract.

The consensus at the meeting was to organize into one group which may be more effective in getting the necessary water.

A temporary board of directors was named to study and form a permanent organization to be known as the South Idaho Water Users Association. The organization will incorporate on a non-profit basis.

Members of the temporary board are Elmer Parrott, Salmon Tract; Heber Zollinger, Raft River; J. W. Beck, Murtaugh; Ray Anderson, Oakley Fan; Jim Martin, Lower Goose Creek.

The legal work in setting up the organization will be handled by Herman Bedke, Burley, and Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls.

There will be another meeting in about a month.

Hay Burned On Ranch At Milner

MILNER — Approximately 40 tons of hay were destroyed by fire at the Glen Breeding farm at Milner Thursday noon.

The hay was valued at about $15 per ton and the loss is covered by insurance, Mr. Breeding said. The blaze was spotted by the Breeding's son, Scott, 11, who came to the field where Mr. and Mrs. Breeding were harvesting potatoes and told them.

The Murtaugh Volunteer Fire Fire Department crew was called and with the help of Howard Conrad, a neighbor, machinery which was standing nearby was moved to safety.

It is believed that an electric fence which had shorted out during the rainstorm in the past few days, caused the fire.

Emmett Baby Hurt At Bliss

BLISS—An Emmett baby was injured about midnight Wednesday and his parents escaped injury in a one-car accident about five miles west of here on U.S. Highway 30, according to Idaho State Police.

Officers said a 1956 Pontiac driven by Ernie L. Campbell, 44, Emmett, went off the road, traveled about 350 feet in the borrow pit and rolled completely over when it started back onto the highway.

Officers said Mr. Campbell, who was charged with failure to keep his vehicle under control, apparently dozed, causing the accident.

His wife, Sue Ann, 26, was not injured. The baby, 3-month-old Ernie Lee Campbell Jr., was apparently thrown from the front to the back seat during the mishap.

He was taken to Gooding Memorial Hospital where he was reported in fairly good condition.

Truckers

Carriers Association gathered in Cleveland to act on the plan drafted Tuesday by a seven-state mediation team.

George Gregory Mantho, the association's managing director and labor counsel, said he didn't know what action, if any, will be taken. He was quoted earlier as saying the proposed settlement "is not worth the paper it's written on."

"Our association was committed to a collective bargaining agreement which we refuse to open," Mantho said in referring to a national contract signed last spring with the Teamsters Union.

About 60 per cent of the 10,000 to 20,000 striking independent steel haulers, who lease their own rigs to trucking firms and work on a percentage basis, are covered under a supplement to that contract.

A second group of carriers, representing 80 firms in the Pittsburgh area, has already said no to the settlement plan. Instead, the group offered a counterproposal which it said the drivers would have to compromise on.

As word of the carriers' dissatisfaction spread, trucks in Michigan and Ohio were peppered with gunfire.

Medical Costs Rise Along With High Cost Of Living, No End In Sight

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

In gathering material for this study into medical costs, this reporter spoke with anyone willing to talk on the subject. Physicians, of course, could not be identified because of ethics, but their statements reflect a true and varied picture.

For instance, an internist said he charges $6 a call, up from $5 in seven years. "People are getting good value for their dollar when they see a physician," he said.

"Years ago physicians told people to get lots of rest with a case of typhoid. Now, with all the diagnostic facilities available, and with increased knowledge, a physician knows it is typhoid before treatment is started, and can treat that sickness in a specific manner."

In the radiology section at the hospital, prices were reduced 15 years ago, and there has never been an increase in charges until—just recently, when costs went up to where they had been 15 years ago.

For instance, a foot X ray 15 years ago was $10. It was reduced to $8, and in Feb. of 1966 the charge went back to $10. The overall increase in charges there has not been great, physicians said, and the increase reflects the increase in the cost of equipment and wages that have to be paid in that department.

Radiology is one of many diagnostic services available and one that was mentioned by the internist.

Equipment for X-ray costs a tremendous amount of money, with $60,000 sometimes paid for just one piece of equipment.

A technician to operate that machine made about $275 a month six to 10 years ago. That same technician is paid $475 a month today.

A housewife, speaking of the cost of medicine, said she didn't object to the high prices there if everything else "wasn't so high."

Her point was that if costs keep rising, will the middle income family have enough to pay the bills?

If anything was learned in investigating medical costs in the area and nation, it was that wages take the biggest hunk. Equipment costs come next. And, if it wasn't for insurance today, many people would flounder under the mass of hospital bills.

What can be done?

Physicians recommend increased incentives to young people to enter the field of medicine.

With the same amount of training required to be a doctor, a young man or woman could enter industry with a PhD in a science and make more than in medicine.

Some rebellion within the medical ranks on the cost of equipment was also recommended by several area physicians.

For example, one physician said a light in an X-ray room would cost $5 if ordered through a medical supply house. Because of a time element, the physician could not wait for delivery. He purchased a light in a local supermarket for 75 cents. It serves the purpose very well.

A stainless steel stool for physical therapy could cost $75. A homemade variety could cost $5, but of course would not last as long.

But even with radical cuts here, it would not help in hospital costs. Officials at Magic Valley Memorial pointed out 72 per cent of the entire budget goes for wages. And good wages cannot be denied qualified people, officials said.

Medical costs in Magic Valley, if compared with the rest of the nation, are not high either. Physicians contacted said office visits to hospital care are much lower than other sections of the country.

A $5 office call compares with a $7.50 call in Chicago or Washington, D. C. An internist said his charge "amazed" a woman from Southern California, who was prepared to pay $10 or more. The $31 a day for a semi-private room at Magic Valley Memorial compares with $45 a day in Washington, D. C.

A physician who charged $50 for a tonsillectomy 20 years ago charges $75 today. This compares with $150 in New York City.

Hospital charges here vary, of course, but for a tonsillectomy the total charge, for physician and hospital care from entry to dismissal, can be $150 to $200. In Boise, the charge is from $15 to $35 higher, and in Washington, D. C., the charge is from $50 to $200 higher than in Magic Valley.

The costs are high because hospital operating costs in the areas mentioned are high and wages and equipment are high.

There is no end in sight, either locally or nationwide.

But while costs have gone up, the chances of survival have gone up.

Medical people feel it's worth it.

Many people who have to pay the bills do not. Especially working people, who feel doctors and hospitals have been robbing them for years. In many instances, this feeling may be a true one, but each individual should examine his own circumstance and determine the value he received for the care given him.

If such care costs $1,000, was it worth it? If the patient feels it isn't, he can talk it over with his physician. Contrary to popular belief, physicians do talk, and will listen to the problem if the patient mentions it.

One physician contacted said his patients "do not very often confer with me directly about their bill."

But even so, the cost is high, and rising. Americans have to compare this rise with the rise in cost of other things, then determine if it is fair.

The Newspaperboy

Newspaperboy Day, Oct 14, comes at an appropriate time in current affairs. It comes at a time when the literate public is anxiously surveying the day's news in earnest hope that the atmosphere among world powers will not further deteriorate.

More than 800,000 independent carriers, each his own boss and a young businessman, are the direct contact between a large part of the reading public and its daily newspapers.

There is no more graphic example of the important service rendered to his customers than the inquiries from the route of a newspaperboy who may be detained by bad weather or school duties. The public depends to a greater extent on the newspaperboy for his daily service than it does on any other individual distributor.

In the U.S. more than 50 million daily newspapers are delivered to the home by carriers who put in an aggregate of 5 million working hours per week and earn more than $200 million annually. This is undoubtedly one of the largest part-time activities undertaken by young people, and one which provides a rich experience for the formative years.

It is not without self-denial that newspaperboys assume their tasks of early business management. It is a credit to their industriousness and beginning maturity that they place the value of work above the playthings and endless recreational attractions available to youth. They exemplify the ideal expressed by Thomas Wolfe when he wrote:

"The young men of this land are not, as they are often called, a 'lost' race—they are a race that never yet has been discovered."

Congratulations are due the young men who are helping their often blind elders discover the truly remarkable accomplishments of an eager body and a young mind.

The Incompetents

It has started again. Every autumn the hunters take to the fields and the mountains, and every year several of them wind up as victims of a fringe of careless incompetents who shouldn't be trusted out with a slingshot.

In the frantic search by the ballooning population of the United States for outdoor recreation it is inevitable — and unfortunate — that a lot of novices decide each year to try America's popular sport of hunting. They read some articles in a sportsmen's magazine, shell out a hundred dollars or so for a high powered rifle and take off on a bright fall weekend for a stimulating excursion in the wilds.

And all too often, the novice, in the wild excitement of his first hunt, winds up losing whatever good sense and caution he started out with and shoots at the first thing he sees move, winding up bagging another hunter instead of his dreamed-of big game.

Fish and Game Departments and outdoor sportsmen's groups work continually trying to educate the general public in the proper use of and respect for firearms. One of the most successful phases of this education program is the work they do with youngsters — in schools, Boy Scouts and other youth groups.

It is too bad some way can't be worked out to require everyone who goes hunting to have qualified in a course covering firearms safety, hunter courtesy and general conduct in the field.

Hunters are required to have licenses, but actually all they are doing is paying a tax. It doesn't seem too far-fetched to propose that some sort of proof of competency with firearms and responsibility of conduct be required of persons who are licensed to be turned loose with a deadly weapon in their hands.

Such a requirement would in no way restrict or impose upon a true hunter or sportsman, and should only help to insure that he can continue to enjoy his sport to the fullest.

Balance Of Payment

The U. S. balance-of-payments account has received two assists—one from an increased foreign-trade surplus, the other from the voluntary businessmen's program to curb the flow of dollars overseas.

Despite this help, however, the payments deficit is expected to be the largest in three years mainly because of Vietnam.

According to the Commerce Department, imports in August declined 5.4 per cent from July. Exports also dropped, but by only 1.2 per cent, the net result being the best foreign-trade surplus in 17 months.

As for the dollar outflow, the department said revised projections by 625 companies participating in the program indicated an overall improvement of $2.4 billion in 1967. This would exceed the original goal by about $400 million.

Last year's deficit in the payments balance was $1.4 billion. Treasury Secretary Fowler has estimated the 1967 deficit will go as high as $2 billion.

Although the Vietnam war's cost is at an annual rate of $25 billion, the secretary says that in terms of the impact on our foreign exchange, Vietnam is taking approximately $2 billion a year. Thus if it were not for the war, the payments balance would be a thing of the past.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

Opinions Of Guest Editors

THE POINT IS DISCLOSURE

The Senate went a little too far in compromising on truth-in-lending legislation, and now there is some danger that the House might go too far in reverse, leaving the measure open to defeat.

In requiring most creditors to disclose the annual cost of credit to customers, the Senate exempted revolving charge accounts and first mortgages on homes. The House bill offered by Representative Leonor Sullivan of St. Louis rejects these exemptions, but adds such new provisions as an 18 per cent credit ceiling and a ban on garnishment of wages by creditors:

Big department and mail order stores and banks were mildly pleased by the Senate exemptions and most credit agencies will be adamant against the House provisions. Since it has taken seven years for Congress to get this far with truth-in-lending legislation, some reasonable reorganization seems in order to rescue the bill. We think former Senator Paul Douglas, who initiated the struggle years ago, offered good advice to a House committee.

He suggested further study of the garnishment issue, and warned against trying to hold interest rates to 18 per cent in this bill. At the same time, he urged the House to reject the Senate exemptions for first home mortgages and revolving charge accounts, for both are major sources of credit.

Revolving charge accounts do present a difficult problem of translating monthly credit costs on variable charges into annual interest rates. Still, it ought to be possible to require a statement of annual rates for different charge account brackets, such as $25, $50 and $100. That would give the consumer some basis for judging the real status of his interest payments, where monthly percentage costs do not.

Paul Douglas contends that the immediate need is for full disclosure of interest charges, unencumbered by other credit issues, and we agree. We also agree with him and with Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge that simple disclosure would help bring interest rates down, encourage sounder use of consumer credit and benefit the economy. Disclosure is the point in truth-in-lending, and Congress ought to stick to the point.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Our Capital City--Pangs Of Guilt

WASHINGTON — Other cities might well take note of the pangs of guilt now being suffered by the capital city over the exposure of an outrageous exploitation of the poor. Even if wealthy whites are unable to muster up any human indignation over the situation, they should feel some unease over the realization that such exploitation makes converts for the Rap Browns and Stokely Carmichaels of Black Power.

What has happened here is that hundreds of low-income Negro homeowners have been victimized by home improvement and second mortgage companies, whose over-charging and fraudulent practices net more than $1 million a year. The pathetic stories of these victims are told in more than 100 lawsuits alleging high-pressure salesmanship, fraud and false notarization of second mortgages.

In what can only be described as mass after-thought, the home improvement companies and the second mortgage buyers involved are now being investigated by U.S. postal inspectors, the Federal Housing Authority, the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice. In the meantime, a score or more of families have lost their homes through foreclosures, another indication that Justice is not only blind, but moves with a limp.

It is the old, sleazy film-flam game the exploiters are playing on the Washington poor. A home improvement company sells a homeowner a new roof or a new room or a new hot water heater. A few weeks later, the homeowner discovers that his account has been sold to a credit company and that he now owes as much as twice the debt he contracted for and, usually, has mortgaged his home for that debt.

There are hundreds of these sordid stories in the investigators' files, and one of the most outrageous involves Lucy Kinard, 56, and blind, who lives with her partially blind, 76-year old mother.

Mrs. Kinard and her mother bought a portable television set, a gas hot water heater and a radiator. The two women understood that the total cost was $900, and duly made their marks on a contract for that amount.

A few weeks later, says Mrs. Kinard, a man telephoned to tell her he had bought a note and a deed of trust against her home for $7,500, plus 7 per cent interest. When Mrs. Kinard told the man she hadn't contracted for such an arrangement, he hustled out to her home and threatened to foreclose on the mortgage. Mrs. Kinard and her mother are now paying $50 a month on the note, in addition to payments on a first mortgage. At this writing, they had made 15 payments totaling $750, but still owed $7,402.34 on the principal.

Item: A 67-year-old charwoman has two mortgages on her home totaling $9,000 as a result of two cash loans that totaled only $5,000.

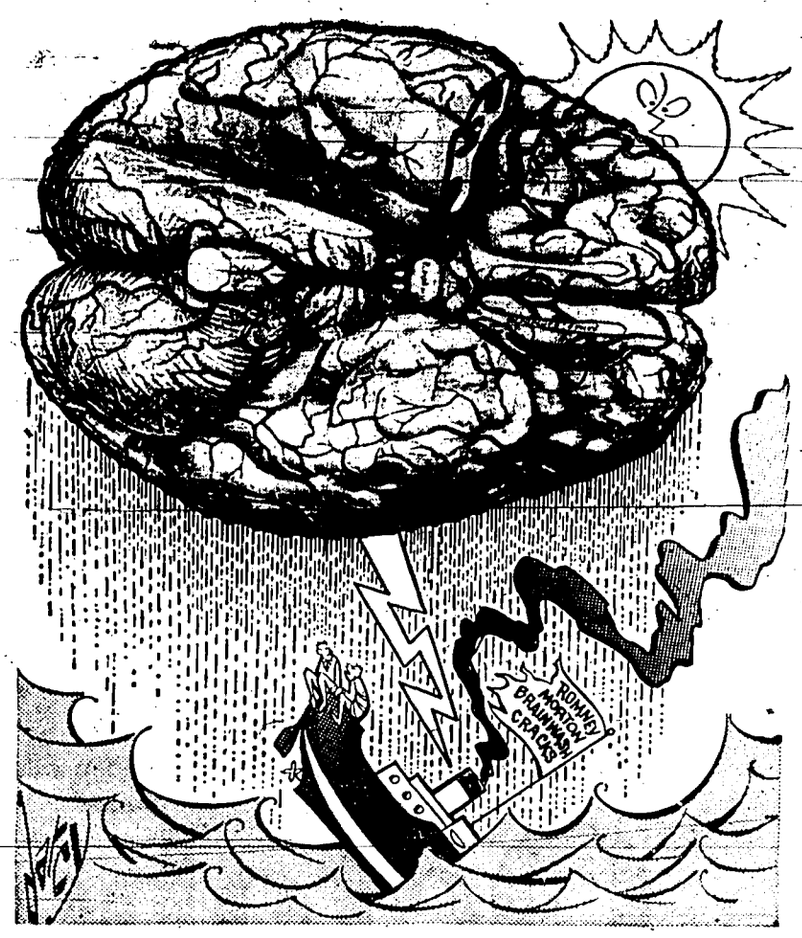

Item: A retired couple in their 70's ended up with $15,000 in mortgages after a credit company paid off their old $7,500 mortgage and financed installation of an "American Townehouse" front on their home that consisted of new siding, a new front door and a coat of paint.

Most of these homeowners can neither read nor write. They can't afford lawyers to advise them. The Black Power boys are too busy consolidating their own political positions to give them any help. Besides, the average victim is of little interest to Black Power because he represents the Negro majority, which is ordinarily responsible and law-abiding, and thus is not available for periodic adventures in looting and rock-throwing.

It is understandable that U.S. Attorney David Bress should explain that his office has been too busy with crimes of violence to give proper attention to the contractors and credit companies engaged in robbing the poor by means of legal documents. In the past five years, Washington has become a jungle of rape, robbery and murder, and Bress' office is inundated daily with new cases of criminal prosecution.

But the public should beware, not only in Washington but in every city where there are poor. The law-abiding Negro who discovers that his respect for a contract has been exploited by a crook with white skin may decide that Rap Brown has something. With his home foreclosed, what else can he lose?

The Echo Of A Write-In Vote

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The item off the news ticker from New Hampshire tells of an immediate start on a write-in campaign for Gov. Ronald Reagan in the Presidential primary next march. I'll have to try to put a stop to that right away, says Reagan's chief aide-de-camp, Franklyn C. Nofziger. There oughta be a law, he adds with a rueful smile, that a man who doesn't want to run for President shouldn't be made to run.

This sounds like the echo of another noncandidate across the country in New York. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is, like Reagan, trying hard to keep from getting out in front where the pack can chew up the front runner. But for Reagan, who has just ended a successful foray into three states and is preparing to invade eight others before the end of the year, the innocent disguise of the noncandidate comes harder.

In fact, the belief grows here that Reagan's rich and powerful backers will privately engineer a New Hampshire write-in that may give him a big boost for the nomination. Write-ins do not happen by chance even when the beneficiary is a nationally known figure with instant identity and whose conservative stand matches New Hampshire's conservative outlook.

The write-in for Henry Cabot Lodge in 1964 was highly organized and well-finances behind the scenes. As Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater breasted the blizzards and plodded along snow-filled streets the Lodge write-in steadily gained momentum, with the amiable target tending to his job as ambassador in far-off Vietnam. And while Lodge's surprising triumph did little for him it cast a doubt on Goldwater's vote-getting ability, which was the objective of those who had backed the exercise.

That is the exact goal of the influential men dreaming of making Ronald Reagan President of The United States. Even if a write-in falls short of the Lodge triumph, a big vote would throw a shadow over the one rival the Reagan strategists consider a serious contender. Richard M. Nixon must take the first hurdle, and take it big, or the can't-win tag will hang around his neck like a gallows rope.

Already Reagan has begun to cut into Nixon's strength in the south. The California Governor wowed them last week in South Carolina. At the end of the month he goes to Republican fund-raising dinners in Dallas and Houston, Texas should be made to order for his brand of processed and packaged Goldwaterism with the Reagan television personality on the label.

The familiar analogy of the iceberg applied to the Reagan noncandidacy so little shows on the surface and obviously so much is going on in the obscure depths below.

Most conspicuous at the top, to the surprise of those who know him as a good-natured and hard-working correspondent for the Copley newspapers in Washington, is Nofziger. He is said to write the Reagan out-of-state speeches and, if the Milwaukee essay was a sample, they carry the shrewd appeal on key emotional issues calculated to win Republicans who will be most influential in making the decision at the Miami Beach convention.

In the background, on what is said to be a voluntary consultant basis, is the public relations firm of Spencer and Roberts. The Spencer-Roberts pair helped to paper over, at least for 1968, the deep moderate-right wing split in the California party so that hopefully Sen. Thomas Kuchel will have no serious opposition in next year's primary.

But for all the help he gets, both visible and invisible, Reagan's role in this political sleight-of-hand cannot be discounted.

Lately Reagan has begun to modify a little his hawkish stand on Vietnam. In response to press conference questions on whether the United States should invade the north, he says this is a military decision with only the President having sufficient information to make a judgment. That is a long way from the call for turning North Vietnam into a parking lot, with nuclear weapons not ruled out.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a summer resort owner gets tired of hearing:

"So this is Jovial Jake Bumble's Happyland on Lake Bide-a-Wee! Frankly, it looks to me more like a disaster area."

"Are these other people guests—or refugees?"

"I am not one to raise moral issues on a vacation, Mr. Bumble, but are you sure those so-called honeymooners you put in the cottage next to us are really honeymooners? Did you ask to see their marriage license?"

"I can't swim in the lake because it's too cold and I can't swim in the pool because it's too warm."

"You mean you charge a dime apiece for your postcards? Why, at the resort we stayed last year, they gave us two for 15 cents."

"My husband lost $12.50 playing poker last night with those two rough-looking fellows from Brooklyn. What are you running here, Mr. Bumble, a gambling hall?"

"Things look kinda quiet here, Jake. What's the matter? That resort on the other side of the lake is really jumping. Heard they had to turn away 20 people yesterday."

"Another rainy day. That makes seven in a row. Do you think maybe it's time for us guests to start building an ark?"

"What'll we do, boss? Four parties have signed up for horseback riding this morning, and we've only got two horses, and one of them is too lame to work."

"Who called your comedian a comedian? He tells jokes like he was a moonlighting pallbearer."

"Confidentially, if you could give me and my family a reduction in your rates, I'll be glad to handle any medical emergencies during our stay here. I'm only a veterinarian, but we don't have to tell that to your guests. After all, an upset stomach is an upset stomach, whether it's in a guest or a cow."

"It looks like I left my checkbook at home, Jake. Well, just send the bill along to my office, and my secretary will take care of it—as soon as she gets back from her own vacation next month."

ART BUCHWALD

The 1968 Pennant

WASHINGTON — "Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. This is Curt Howdy speaking to you from the White House Stadium in Washington, D.C. Well, 1967 has been a whale of a baseball season and it's time we started to look into the future and see what 1968 has to offer. Seated with me here in the box is Lyn Johnson, playing manager of the American Patriots, the team that everyone had put their hopes on, but which finished badly at the end of the season.

"Lyn, there seems to be a lot of discontent on the team, and there is even some talk of firing you and getting a new manager. How do you feel about this?"

"Curt, Ah always felt a baseball team was like a family. We reserve the right to express ourselves freely, but when we come to finding someone better in the kitchen that we would like to trade with someone else, it's another matter."

"Lyn, why do you think the Americans are in so much trouble?"

"Ah can't rightly say. Ah inherited a very difficult situation when Ah took over as manager, and all Ah'm doing is carrying out the policies of previous managers. Everyone has a different solution to the problem. There are some who want me to hit harder. There are others who want me to concentrate on pitching, and there are others who don't want me to play ball at all.

"But, Ah'm the manager, and Ah have to make the final decision."

"They say one of the reasons your team isn't doing very well is that the people think you're throwing too many curve balls. What do you have to say to that?"

"Ah've been throwing them straight over the plate, and Ah think that people who say things like that are only giving aid and comfort to the other league. Ah don't mind dissent, but how do you think the other league feels when they read about the criticism of the way Ah'm managing the ball club?"

"Lyn, it has been said that one of the reasons the team is not getting support is because of your inability to defeat the North Vietnam Raiders. You've been playing them now for four years and it's still a tie ball game."

"Our chances against the Raiders have never looked better. If it weren't for us, the Saigon Defenders would be in the cellar right now. We're hitting the Raiders and hitting them hard. What are we supposed to do, pack up our bats and go home?"

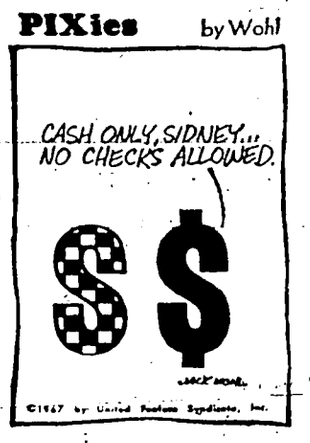

"Well, Lyn, you're option is up next year and in a recent poll of the fans you seem to be running behind such would-be managers as Nelly Rockefeller, Ron Reagan, Chuck Percy and Milhouse Nixon. Are you worried?"

"Ah never put any truck in polls. Ah've done more for the fans than any manager in history. Ah've taken care of the old fans. Ah've taken care of the Negro fans. Ah've taken care of the fans that live in the cities. Ah've beautified the stadium. Ah've provided parking for business executives. Ah've given employment to the people. And Ah've worked hard to make this the best team that money can buy. And the fans are going to remember that on option day."

"One more question, Lyn, and then I'll let you go back to figuring out how you're going to win next year. There's a young player on your team named Bobby Kennedy, and there are some people who are talking about him as the new manager. What about that?"

"Bobby Kennedy has never played on my team."

WAYNE BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Operation Risk

Q. Is there any way a 70-year-old man with prostate trouble can get permanent relief except by an operation? Would an operation be dangerous at that age?

A. If by prostate trouble you mean an enlarged gland, a common accompaniment of advanced age, some form of operation is the only cure. Modern methods of operating on the prostate have reduced the risk almost to the vanishing point.

Q. I am 58 and have an enlarged prostate. Is there any medication for this condition? How sucessful is prostatic massage? Does enlargement always lead to cancer?

A. There is no drug that will shrink your prostate. Massage is of some value in treating a chronically infected prostate but will not shrink an enlarged gland. Benign prostatic enlargement is not related to cancer of the prostate.

Q. My husband had a prostate operation in 1966 but he still has to get up several times at night to urinate. Could this be cancer? What treatment would you suggest?

A. There are many causes of frequent urination at night. Cancer of the prostate is only one and can easily be confirmed or ruled out by your husband's doctor. The commonest cause is hardening of the arteries, and for that there is no remedy.

Q. If a man has a prostatic enlargement that doesn't cause any symptoms is an operation necessary?

A. A benign enlargement that causes no symptoms needs no treatment but, since the condition is slowly progressive, an operation may become necessary later.

Q. What medicine would you recommend for an infected prostate?

A. If the infection is chronic, oxyphenbutazone, obtainable only on a doctor's prescription, combined with prostatic massage should clear up the infection.

Q. I have had a backache for years. When it gets real bad I take two or three boxes of kidney pills but lately they don't give me any relief. Can I take too many of them? What would cause my backache?

A. There are many causes of backache but the idea that kidney trouble is one of them is false. Common causes include the misnamed slipped disk, arthritis, gout, a sudden strain of some of the back muscles (this may even occur during sleep), and weakness due to insufficient exercise. Why not have your doctor discover and treat the real cause?

Sound Men Work Magic In Picture World

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kathryn Grayson had a head cold that silenced her voice on the climactic high note of her big musical number. So? Another soprano sang the note and sound men blended the two voices together so expertly that no one noticed.

Sound men are electronic wizards who have been working their magic with dials, meters, grunts, groans, thumps and recorded rackets since the advent of talking pictures 40 years ago last week.

By re-recording they extend a singer's faltering high note or bring an off-key sound into tune. With a new machine they can retard or accelerate a singing passage and keep the same pitch.

Three of them were at work this week on an MGM stage where they manufacture a galaxy of outdoor sounds from hoofbeats and elephant steps to fist-fight thuds and chain rattles for television series and motion picture films.

On another stage, actors watched themselves on a screen as they re-recorded much of their dialogue. Why not record the sounds live when the scene is shot?

"Lots of reasons," said veteran effects man Scott Perry. "Airplanes. Traffic. Wind. The director may be talking. Maybe they can't get a microphone close to the actors or the effects don't come off right."

On a screen a horseman rode into a scene of the "Hondo" television series. Kneeling near a microphone, Perry thumped two pairs of hard rubber cups on handles against rocky earth in time with the horse's steps. In the recording booth the clip-clops sounded completely authentic.

Perry, 55, is an animal-sound specialist. Wearing cotton gloves with paper clips taped to the fingertips, he can simulate a dog trotting along a sidewalk. With wadded Turkish towels over his fists, he provides the elephant's plodding footfalls in television's "Maya," filmed in India.

Another member of the team, Jack Morisette, 43, is a hand specialist, expert at perfectly timed sounds of card shuffling or ice cubes—actually small plastic spools—falling into a drinking glass.

Hank Brodkin, 32, a newcomer to the offbeat occupation, is already skilled at making the squeaks of a saddle being cinched with a folded-over soft-leather briefcase.

Sound-making props include a wading pool of water for splashing; hobnail boots for storm trooper footsteps and beaded curtains for South-Sea-siren scenes. A hot-water bag simulates a diver walking with flopping fins on his feet. A bay tree, rattled, becomes a villain leaping through brush. A rope pulled tight around a grooved post is the squeaking rigging of an old sailing ship.

Iron steps to the recording booth resound to footsteps like ship's ladders. For other footsteps there are sections of dirt, gravel, cement, bricks, hollow plywood, wood-block flooring and carpeting.

Sounds of car motors, car-door slams and gunshots are taken from three million feet of sound effects film stored on reels in a nearby vault. Effects are indexed from A to Z—"Air, escaping from hose" and "Zipper, various ways." In between are "machines: steel mill, oil well, power house, publishing" and "motorcyles: starting, gunning, idling."

Television Specials Serve Real Purpose

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the prime purposes of the special, all networks agree, is to get people talking about television again as a personal experience.

It is practically certain that there has been plenty of morning-after talk about Wednesday night's Barbra Streisand hour, "The Belle of 14th Street." They may even have been heated arguments, pro and con.

At any rate, it was a program completely unlike Miss Streisand's previous television vehicles in both form and execution. The same amount of effort and meticulous attention to detail was in evidence, but the comedy was broader and the show busier.

It was built around the well-worn notion of recreating an evening of turn-of-the-century vaudeville played before an audience in the elaborate, colorful costumes of the era. This device gave the hour considerable flexibility. The acts ranged from Jason Robards singing "You're the Apple of My Eye and I Love Apples" surrounded by a bevy of heavyweight chorus girls to a discreet strip-tease by Miss Streisand while singing "Alice Blue Gown" to a rendition of an old patriotic song done so dead pan that it was a satire on an earlier generation of flag wavers.

There was John Bubbles, looking pretty silly wearing rooster feathers instead of trousers for no discernible reason, singing and dancing.

But despite the help from others, it was Miss Streisand's evening. She came on as a German opera star singing Liebestraum, complete with accent and in the same bit played a little boy soprano and wound up singing a duet with herself.

The low point of the program was a Shakespearean spoof, a very elaborate thing with Robards and Miss Streisand playing the principal roles in "The Tempest." There was much changing of costumes and exaggerated rhetoric, and flying around the tiny stage but it failed to come off amusingly.

The high point arrived with Miss Streisand, in a stunning Mae West costume of black velvet and white ostrich feathers.

Make no mistake, she is an exciting performer with a style that is her very own and a fine true voice with which she can do just about what she wants. In this superelegant costume she alternately camped and sobbed her way through an assortment of familiar old songs that ranged from "Melancholy Baby" to "Some of These Days."

CBS will drop its new western series, "Dundee and the Culhane" in mid-December, replacing it on Dec. 22 with a variety show starring Jonathan Winters. It is the first cancellation of the new season.

Students Make Thrill Capsules

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Homemade "thrill capsules" manufactured by high school students have hospitalized three teen-agers and made at least 15 others seriously ill, Salt Lake City Police reported today.

And Dr. Alan K. Done, director of the University of Utah Prison Control Center, said an overdose of the capsules — now turning up in several high schools—could be fatal.

The capsules first came to the attention of police Thursday when a physician reported serious illnesses cropping up among Salt Lake City high school students. At least 18 were stricken after taking the homemade pills.

Police said the capsules are made by grinding up the tobacco from asthmatic cigarettes in a blender and putting the powder in empty gelatin capsules. Both can be purchased from any drugstore.

The medicinal cigarettes are designed to give relief to smokers suffering from asthma. Several weeks ago, a Salt Lake County youth was arrested trying to sell the cigarettes for marijuana.

Dr. Done said the tobacco, when taken internally, is toxic. He issued a bulletin from his office Thursday, alerting the hospital staff about the danger.

Dr. Done said an overdose of three to four capsules could cause death. And once taken there would be no antidote.

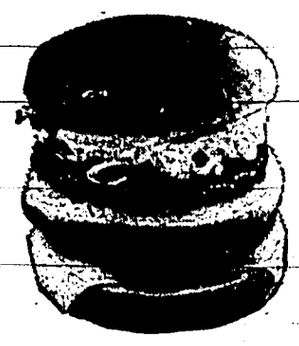

Victims who have already taken capsules in search of a thrill, told police the pills were selling for $1 to $5 each. One student said he knew of one individual who had 300 of the capsules in his possession.

"THOSE WERE THE DAYS," according to Arlon Bastian, whose combo is currently featured four nights a week at the Holiday Inn Lounge. Here he is shown with the Will Wright Band, with which he started playing in 1935. From left are Maxine Merrill, deceased, Mr. Wright, Salt Lake City, Mr. Bastian and Lloyd Haynes, both Twin Falls; O. O. Clark, address unknown; Tony Warner, Twin Falls; Dave Johnson, Montana; Reed Coulam, Twin Falls; Glade Jorgensen, who has been a pilot for United Air Lines; Jud Pettygrove, Twin Falls, and Gerald Ridgeway, Kimberly. Mr. Haynes, Mr. Bastian and J. Hill are members of the combo featured at the Holiday Inn.

Popular Music To Last A Lifetime

Featured at the Holiday Inn Lounge four nights a week is a combo whose members started out in the days of the "big bands" and have remained popular through all the fads since then.

The Arlon Bastian trio, Lloyd Haynes, J. Hill and Mr. Bastian, have been playing together for many years. Mr. Bastian and Mr. Haynes played together in the Will Wright orchestra when Mr. Bastian came to Twin Falls in 1935 and Mr. Hill joined the two and several others when the Bastian band started in about 1939. Among members of that band was Reed Coulam, Twin Falls City Building Inspector.

The combo continues to play many of the old familiar tunes they played then — a danceable sort of music that has remained popular for years. The music starts at 9 p.m. and continues until 1 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Holiday.

The combo has been playing at the Holiday lounge since February. "One of the best things about playing in a band," according to Mr. Bastian, "Is seeing all the people that I've known for years and years. We've been on the verge of quitting several times in the past few years, but we just keep on because we enjoy it."

And, if the public's reaction to the combo's music over the past several years means anything, they enjoy it, too. Mr. Bastian is starting his 33rd year with the Gooding Dance Club, and has played nearly every dance hall in this country over the years.

Mr. Bastian plays bass fiddle, Mr. Haynes drums, and Mr. Hill plays piano and organ.

Before coming to Twin Falls Mr. Bastian lived in Utah where he started out with "Tab and Buns Americans." "I guess," he recalls, "that at one time or another, I played every dance hall in Utah, too."

The combo features what is known in the trade as commercial music, latin, pop, modern—in other words, the kind of music people like to dance to.

The music fad today is just a rehash of the music of the 20s. "We considered it corny in 1930 . . . it's a mixture of the 20s, hillbilly and latin, but it's beginning to go back to the kind of music which has always been popular, the ballad."

However, despite the fads of the 20s, Mr. Bastian said that some of the best dance music was written during that period, and his band still features many of those songs.

Apparently, despite the feelings of some teeny-boppers, the band isn't too far off base. "The top ten bands in the country last year," Mr. Bastian said, "are made up of men who are getting pretty close to their 70s."

Space Studies May Bring Cancer Cure

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Astronaut Walter M. Shirra Jr. says it may turn out that some of the answers cancer research scientists are looking for on earth will come out of research going on in space.

Schirra, who will command next year's first manned Apollo flight, addressed a statewide cancer conference Thursday. He is the 1968 Texas Cancer Crusade chairman.

Schirra cautioned the professional and volunteer workers not to expect too much too soon from either space or earth research.

But he said "It may turn out that the answers cancer research scientists are looking for down here on earth will come out of research that's going on in space."

He referred to the launching several months ago by NASA scientists of a space laboratory bearing many different forms of simple plant and animal life.

Schirra said that project is an example of how outer space exploration aids earthbound research, noting that it and others seek answers to what happens to basic molecules controlling heredity when they are exposed to space radiation.

Reports Cast Doubt On Guevara's Death

By JORGE CANELAS

LA PAZ, Bolivia ((P) — Conflicting reports, rumor and the skepticism of Ernesto Che Guevara's family cast doubt today on the Bolivian army's claim that it had killed the Latin American revolutionary.

Government and army accounts clashed on whether the guerrilla said to be Guevara was buried or cremated, how he met his death and whether he identified himself before dying.

Guevara's brother Roberto arrived from Argentina Thursday to claim the body but after conferring with Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, the commander of the army, he said Ovando told him the body had been cremated.

Wednesday the army said Guevara's body had been buried in a secret place, and coincident with Roberto Guevara's arrival a government source said President Rene Barrientos was "of the opinion that the body should be turned over to the Guevara family."

After Roberto Guevara told newsmen about the cremation, a government spokesman said he knew nothing of it.

Radiophotos of the dead man showed a likeness, they said, but not enough to convince them of Guevara's death. One cousin said Che had written his father from Paris.

Further skepticism involved a military communique that said Guevara was wounded in a battle with government troops Sunday and died Monday. But a doctor who examined the body said one of seven bullets that struck it went through the heart.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive, well-balanced young lady of 24 years, and I'm sure I could make some nice young man a good wife, as well as a good mother to the children I'd love to have. My problem is this. Given a choice between two men with whom to fall in love, a nice, respectable, steadily-employed man, or a good-for-nothing bum, I invariably choose the bum.

Can you tell me why? Is it because deep down, I have an unconscious liking for abuse? (The bums take my money and treat me badly). Or could it be that I deliberately avoid the good prospects because I really don't want to get married yet?

I am asking you because I can't afford to go to a psychiatrist. FIRST CLASS DOPE

DEAR DOPE: I wouldn't presume to tell you why you invariably pick the bums over the respectable men, but if you are interested in finding out, try your local mental health clinic.

You say you can't afford to go to a psychiatrist. I say you can't afford to go on picking the bums over the nice guys. You may become disgusted, convince yourself that you don't deserve anything better, and marry one.

DEAR ABBY: After 23 years of marriage I received a birthday greeting card (the first one) from my mother-in-law.

Should I write and thank my mother-in-law for her "thoughtfulness?" Or should I thank my husband for telling her to send the card?

"FLOORED" IN TARZANA

DEAR FLOORED: Thank them both.

DEAR ABBY: I am probably the dumbest man in the world. After 26 years of a happy marriage, I took a fling with another woman. Then to make matters worse I got a little drunk one day and told my wife I was "in love" and wanted a divorce.

Needless to say, my wife was heartbroken. Came the dawn, I woke up to the fact that I really didn't want the other woman OR the divorce, and all I wanted was my wife.

She hasn't left me, and I don't think she will, but things have not been the same between us since. All this happened a year ago, and when I tell her I love her, that I have changed and will never be unfaithful again, all she says is "Yes, Dear."

Have you any advice for an old fool, Abby? OLD FOOL

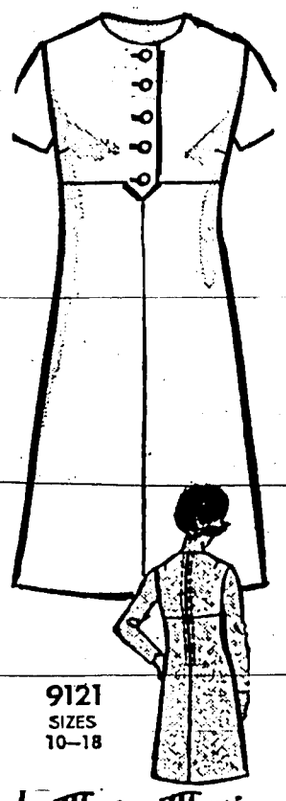

DEAR FOOL: What's been done cannot be undone. Try to make it up to your wife by actions — not words. Pray that eventually she will find it in her heart to forgive you. If she does, you're lucky.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FREE AGAIN": It wasn't much of a marriage when a man will gladly pay a lawyer $300 for untying the knot he grudingly paid a minister $25 for tying.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Travel Talk Is Presented

A travel talk on the eastern states was given by Mrs. C. Jensen for members of the Amoma Class of the First Baptist Church at the home of Mrs. Carl Benson.

The devotional service was given by Mrs. Otis Hall. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Floyd Lilly and Mrs. Della Rambo.

Republican Women's Conclave Scheduled

"I'm really predicting next year's election to be the 'Year of Women'," stated State Sen. Mary Brooks in reviewing plans for the forthcoming 15th Annual Republican Women's Conference and Western Conference to be held Oct. 26 through 29 in Denver.

"Thousands of women are war weary, confused and angered over the no-win policy of McNamara," she continued. "They are frightened and angered over the fact that many are prisoners in their homes after dark. They are sick and tired of living in a crime-infested no-man's land where the administration apologizes for the criminal and blames society for the prevalence of crime. They see a monster government grasping more and more taxes and refusing to cut back on non-defense spending."

According to Mrs. L. James Koutnik, chairman of the Second Congressional District of the Idaho Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, a bus will be chartered for the trip to Denver. The bus will pick up people from Boise through Gooding, Jerome, Twin Falls, Burley and Rupert, leaving Boise Oct. 24. Reservations can be made through Mrs. Koutnik and the deadline has been extended.

Sen. Brooks noted the group has worked very hard on the program for the Western Women's Conference and new and fresh "how-to-do-it" ideas will be presented in workshops. Nancy Clark Reynolds, who is with Gov. Ronald Reagan's Public Relations Staff, and William E. Roberts of the Spence-Roberts Associates, Los Angeles, are on the campaign management and public relations panels.

John Tower is to be the luncheon speaker and all the Republican governors' wives of the western states will be honored at the luncheon.

Congressman James McClure of Idaho will be on a congressional panel.

Program Is Explained At Banquet

The newly inaugurated visitation program was explained at the fifth annual Lynwood Chapel Sunday School banquet Monday at the Depot Grill Caboose Room.

Dale Krumm, general superintendent, reported that the Sunday School had grown from an attendance of 60 in 1962 to the present attendance of 132.

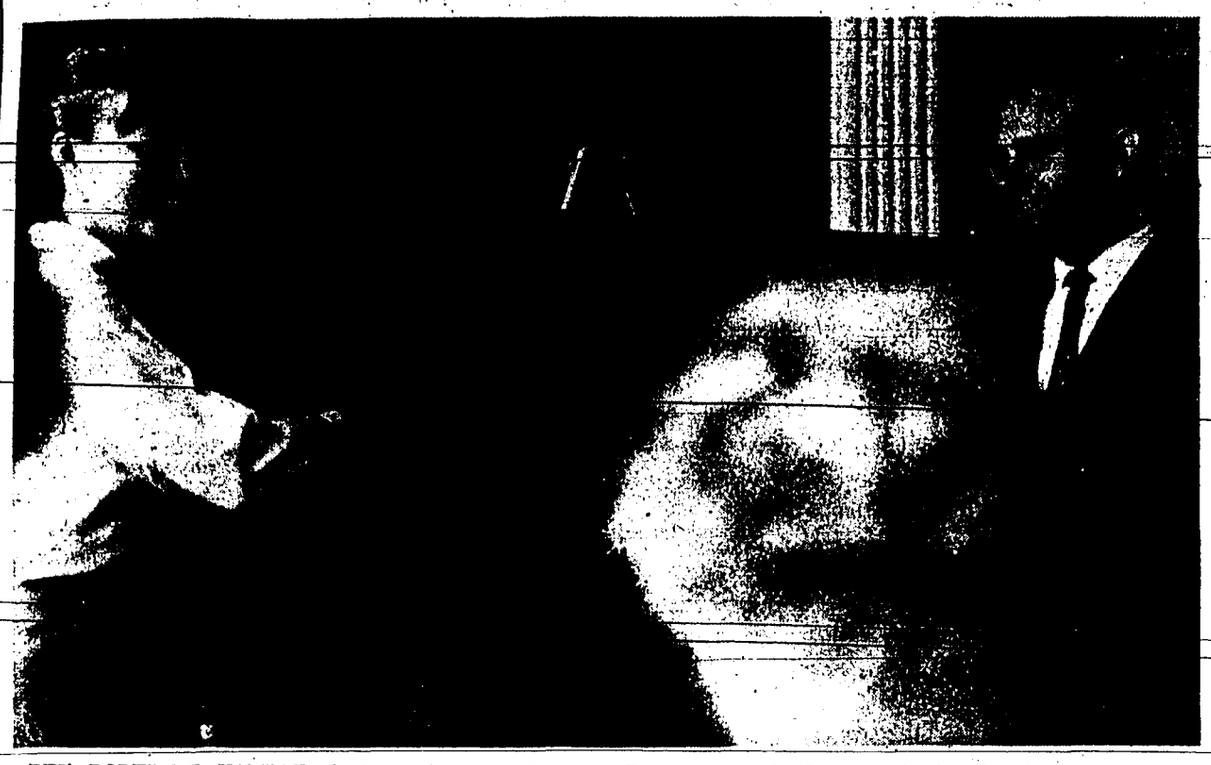

Rev. D. L. Mikel presented an engraved plaque to George Nussbaum, former general superintendent, for three years of service to the Sunday School.

Rev. Joseph John, pastor of the United Missionary Church, Filer, was guest speaker for the event. He challenged workers to a need for greater zeal and advanced many ways to extend the scope and interest in Sunday School.

Themes Enlarged

The Lynwood Chapel Sunday School will continue its advance program through October.

The remaining Sundays will enlarge the themes of "Enrollment," "Enlightenment" and "Involvement."

REV. ROBERT C. HARVEY, right, stands near a blackboard being used by Mrs. Earl S. Johnson, wife of the associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Twin Falls. The two are conducting an adult education class on Bible study as part of a new emphasis on increased adult participation. Youth groups are also receiving special emphasis.

Adult Christian Education Classes Are Under Way At First Presbyterian Church

One of the most challenging aspects of the Twin Falls First Presbyterian Church is the current emphasis on adult education. "At least," says the Rev. Robert C. Harvey, "it is one of the most interesting aspects of our program."

Rev. Robert C. Harvey has just returned from the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, Calif., where he has been working on the degree: Doctor of Science of Theology. The seminary is part of the United Presbyterian Seminary. Rev. Harvey is pastor at the First Presbyterian Church.

"One of the main parts of our program now is the emphasis on adult education," said Rev. Harvey. "It is adult Christian education that we are concerned with in our programs which now include classes in the teachings of Jesus, the contemporary church, books of the Bible, and other topics for the modern Christian."

"Our emphasis on adult education," said Rev. Harvey, "does not mean we are neglecting our youth education programs. They are as strong as ever, and are under the guidance of our associate pastor, Earl S. Johnson Jr. Still we have accelerated our adult programs for a reason . . . we are concerned about the whole Christian education program and intend to do work to better its concept."

One of the adult study groups now functioning at the First Presbyterian Church is one which is investigating the function of woman's work in the church.

Also study groups meet after the current sermons in the church and discuss the sermon and its meaning.

"This gives them a chance to be involved in the actual preaching," says Rev. Harvey.

According to Rev. Harvey the emphasis on adult education is stressed throughout the Presbyterian Church. "It is a significant adult venture."

There are about 900 members of the First Presbyterian Church in Twin Falls, and it is the only Presbyterian church in town.

Not to leave out the youth program completely, Rev. Harvey did mention that under the associate pastor, Earl S. Johnson, the activities have moved from Sunday to weekday evenings. For senior high students recreation and dinners are held Tuesday, and for junior high students programs are available Thursday.

"One thing about all our activity, both adult and youth educational programs are concerned with anything which better relates the resources of the Christian faith."

EVERETT BINGHAM . . . of the LDS genealogy committee and Mrs. Margaret P. Ottosen of the primary board of the church will present genealogy and children's programs at special meetings Sunday at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Fourth Ward LDS Church at 2050 Normal Avenue in Burley. Both will represent church headquarters at the meetings.

He said his church extends a special invitation to parents with children who do not regularly attend Sabbath or Sunday School.

The proclamation designated Sunday through Oct. 22 as Worldwide Bible Reading — National Bible Week. More than 40 million people from all over the world are expected to take part in the new program, which combines the previously separate programs of the American Bible Society and the Laymen's National Committee.

Hazelton Church Hears Speaker

HAZELTON — "Members of the church should recognize the opportunity for evangelistic work in Pakistan and give their support to the kind of work the church is doing there and in similar situations around the world," Rev. Leroy Selby said at the Hazelton Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Selby is a Presbyterian missionary from Pakistan and spoke on Monday evening to a group up Hazelton and Eden residents. He told of the interesting life he lived with his wife and five children in Jhelum, which is located in the northern part of West Pakistan.

His talk was illustrated with colored slides and many items on display which depicted the dress and habits of the Pakistani people. There is a desperate need for consecrated young people who will respond to the challenge of Christian Mission in today's world, reported the missionary, and in Pakistan 98 per cent of the people are Mohammedan.

Japan Will Manufacture Missiles

TOKYO (AP) — The United States and Japan reached an agreement today for Japan to manufacture Nike Hercules and Hawk antiaircraft missiles.

Japanese Foeign Minister Takeo Miki and U.S. Charge d'Affaires David L. Osborn exchanged documents setting down details of the accord. The United States will provide Japan with the expertise to produce the missiles and Japan will undertake to safeguard secrecy of the missile technology.

The Japanese also reluctantly agreed to pay the United States about $9.72 million to help offset costs of developing the weapons.

The missile production—estimated to cost more than $250 million—is a major part of Japan's defense consolidation plan, a five-year program that began in April. Under a previous defense plan, Japan imported Nike Ajax and Hawk missiles, equipping two battalions with Hawks and two with Ajaxes.

The new plan calls for the domestic production of Hawks and support equipment for three battalions and the local manufacture of Nike Hercules for two to three battalions. Ground support equipment for the Hercules will be imported from the United States.

Idaho Has Shortage Of Social Help

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — A State Health Department official told the Idaho Mental Health Advisory Council here Thursday that there is a critical need for social workers in the state.

Dr. Myrick Pullen, director of the mental health division for the Idaho Department of Health, said Idaho would be kept in grip of this shortage if salaries are not improved.

Idaho colleges and universities, he said, do not provide graduate training in social work clinical psychology mental health nursing and psychiatry. Professional people must be recruited from outside the state and Idaho has been unable to attract these trained people because of low salaries, he said.

Dr. Pullen, former superintendent of State Hospital North, Orofino, said the only applicant to succeed him in the post turned down the position because she was making $5,000 more a year as an assistant superintendent at a simflar institution in another Western state.

The council discussed the possibility of encouraging the state Board of Education to develop undergraduate programs in the fields Dr. Pullen said were needed.

The council decided to recommend to the State Board of Health that a salary of $25,000 be paid to the clinical directors of the state's regional mental health programs.

The council elected two directors at Thursday's meeting. They were Lon Davis, Nampa, and A. B. McDonald, Moscow. Both will serve for one year.

The advisory council was to meet at State Hospital North in Orofino Friday.

Crackdown Set Against Foundations Established As Tax-Dodging Schemes

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal crackdown is taking shape against private foundations set up as tax-dodging schemes.

The Internal Revenue Service revealed Thursday it began eight months ago an investigation into what it termed widely promoted plans to avoid taxes through private foundations or family trusts. A congressional inquiry into what Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., has called the mass production of tax-dodging foundations is scheduled to begin Oct. 30.

The Johnson administration's tax revision package scheduled to be sent to Congress later this year is also expected to call for a ban on the diversion of foundation assets to private advantage.

The first witnesses in the congressional inquiry by Patman's House small business subcommittee are expected to be trustees and members of a group called "Americans Building Constitutionally," headquartered in Barrington, Ill.

Patman said the group allegedly instructs its members on how to avoid taxes by setting up personal tax-exempt foundations.

IRS, in disclosing its inquiry, said it can't name names now. But it said the schemes for escaping taxes follow a general pattern and usually involve setting up one or more private foundations. IRS said it doubts the legality of such operations.

The Treasury Department in 1965 recommended to Congress a general ban on financial transactions between a foundation and its contributors, officers, directors or trustees to prevent diversion of assets to private use.

This is still a basic Treasury objective and is expected to be included either in its original or modified form in a tax revision package Johnson has promised to send to Congress this year.

In his economic message to Congress last January, Johnson said without spelling out details: "As one specific reform, I will urge changes to deal with abuses by tax-exempt private foundations."

Gooding Initiation Is Abolished

GOODING — Members of the Board of Trustees of the Gooding Schools announced Wednesday that freshman initiation in the Gooding High School has been abolished, and that the board will sanction no form of hazing.

The decision was made at the regular meeting of the board held Monday night at the high school.

Board members announced that Linda Lee Haggard had been hired as vocal music and language arts teacher for Frahm Junior High School. Miss Haggard is a graduate of the College of Idaho with a Bachelor of Arts degree and a major in music.

Mrs. Jay Brown, elementary teacher; Mrs. Gordon Elsinger, junior high school, and Mrs. Gary Major, high school, met with the board and explained procedures being used with slower reading students, and demonstrated equipment being used in this area.

Members approved purchase of a sousaphone for the band. At the next board meeting, members will be dinner guests of the home economics girls. The annual trustees' banquet was announced for Nov. 4.

Flood Refugees Return To Homes

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Thousands of refugees plodded back to water-soaked homes today after the worst floods in memory in the Buenos Aires area.

Troops, firemen and volunteers evacuated some 120,000 people from swamped towns and hamlets as one river after another overflowed as a result of unusually heavy rains. Thirty-five persons were reported drowned or killed by broken electric wires.

Road Contractor Hires Females

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—A road contractor is hiring female laborers on an interstate highway paving project because he can't find men to take the jobs.

The women, some from Indian reservations in eastern Nebraska, are being paid a minimum of $2 an hour—the same wage a man would be paid.

Grocery Store Investigation May Grow

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee indicates it may extend to other cities its investigation of whether Safeway Stores raised prices in poverty areas on days welfare checks and food stamps are given out.

The panel currently is probing the chain's pricing policies in the Washington area.

Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., chairman of the full Government Operations Committee, commended Rosenthal and pledged to the three women, "We'll try to do something about it."

A House Government Operations subcommittee received conflicting testimony Thursday from three Washington women, who charged their survey proved Safeway engaged in such practices, and from Safeway officials who denied it.

"I tend to think that the ladies made a very persuasive case," said Chairman Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y.

Rosenthal and Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., told newsmen they thought the probe should be widened to include slum areas in such cities as Los Angeles, Cleveland and New York.

The three, Marguerite Kelly, Janie Boyd and Lisa Schlossberg, made the survey for the D. C. Democratic Central Committee. They said prices in three poverty-area Safeway Stores averaged 9.1 per cent higher on Sept. 1 than at six other Safeway Stores for 10 selected items sold in all stores.

The Federal Trade Commission is also looking into the charges but suspended its hearings Thursday so Safeway officials could appear before Rosenthal's panel.

The women presented to the subcommittee charts purporting to show that prices on 10 items tended to rise to a peak at the first of the month—when welfare checks and food stamps are distributed. Prices then would drop a few days later to await the next month's distributions, they contended.

Basil Winstead, Safeway's Washington area manager, and five local store managers denied any deviations from Safeway's standard price could have occurred and said their records proved this.

"Practices of this kind would be a deterrent to sales," Winstead said, adding that any manager who jacked up prices on his own would be quickly found out and dismissed.

Reuss then disclosed he had done some noontime comparison shopping at nearby Safeway Stores and emptied his produce onto a table.

He showed a green pepper, some letture and chicory bought at three different stores, two in poverty areas and the third at Safeway's showpiece downtown international store. He said he paid 48 cents in each case for the three items.

But he noted the poverty-area peppers had holes in them and the lettuce looked wilted. "It seems to me the person who shops at the international store gets a lot more for his 48 cents," said Reuss.

But Reuss added: "I applaud Safeway for operating food stores in poor areas." He said all stores were "clean, decent and I was served by obliging sales personnel."

Rate In Tests

WENDELL — Tom Ambrose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Ambrose, and Charles Gunning, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Edward Gunning, placed first and second in the state test given in the Wendell School.

The two boys will travel to Boise to take another test with other top students in the state. The test is on the United States Congress. The two top students from the state will win a free trip to Washington, D. C.

Today's Market and Financial Report

Stocks

2:30 P.M. SUMMARY

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market held a moderate gain late this afternoon as it staged a limited recovery from three days of sharp decline. Trading was fairly active.

Stocks rose from the start as prices of both glamor stocks and blue chips met support at a line somewhat above the anticipated support area in the averages.

The advance broadened somewhat as the session wore on but there were many losers, making the recovery an irregular one.

Winn-Dixie, a fractional loser, paced the list on volume, mainly because of a single block of 120,500 shares.

Active gainers included Schenley, up more than 2; Budd Co., up nearly 2; and Vornado, up a point or better. Sinclair, Varian Associates and Mobil Oil were active losers.

IBM gained 3 points while advances of about 2 were scored by Control Data, Raytheon, and United Aircraft.

Ford was up a fraction as hopes rose for a strike settlement.

General Electric, still reacting to lower earnings, pared an earlier loss of about a point to a fraction.

Du Pont advanced about 1½, bolstering the average.

Procter & Gamble and U.S. Smelting also tacked on about a point each.

Prices were higher on the American Stock Exchange.

National Newspaperboy Day
October 14, 1967

Your newspaperboy is a Junior Independent Merchant. Guided by men who know how to work with boys, he develops the self-discipline which prompt delivery requires—appreciates the value of money—learns how to get along with people in all walks of life—finds out that selling can be thrilling. On such a solid foundation he will build a name for himself in tomorrow's space-age competition for success.

BUSINESSBOY!

He's the young man who delivers your daily newspaper

THIS BOY has fun—more than most boys have.

He also manages a business of his own.

That business is his newspaper route. And you are one of his prized customers.

He knows that to be successful in business a fellow must keep his customers happy.

So you'll find him making an extra effort to deliver your newspaper every day where you want it, when you want it.

And businessboy that he is, he learns to keep accurate and careful records . . . collects regularly from you, pays his bills on time, takes his profit . . . and goes out and sells to develop more business.

Hence National Newspaperboy Day is—Businessboy Day. And a good occasion to encourage your newspaperboy by letting him know that you do appreciate his service as he appreciates your business. Tell him today.

Idaho-ISU Frosh Teams To Collide In Shrine Tilt Here Saturday Night

Idaho State University and University of Idaho football coaches get their first look at their 1967 frosh crop in action when the two clubs collide in the Twin Falls Shrine Club game at 8 p.m. Saturday at Bruin Stadium.

Eight Magic Valley boys will be making their collegiate debuts in the battle which will send all its proceeds to the Shrine children's hospital.

Since this is the blooding of the two units, neither coach is going overboard in predicting success — or lack of it. ISU Coach Jerry Dellinger believes there's a lot of potential among his charges but cautions "after these kids hit somebody we'll talk about how good they are."

But he seems satisfied so far. "The kids are progressing rapidly and shaping up to a fair ball club. We're looking forward to the game."

On the other end, Idaho Coach Norm Thomas believes there are some boys on his unit who will provide help for the varsity next year and feels the young Vandals will be hard hitters.

Left to the sideline quarterbacks, it appears the game pits ISU's superiority in the backfield against an Idaho line that looks a little deeper and perhaps a mite better.

On what is known of the men from high school days, ISU has a stickout quarterback in Jerry Dunne, Boise, who was a one-man gang last year. He was respected much more for his running as a prepster and only Saturday will show how his passing has progressed. Facing the pressure on him is speedy Rick Hulbert, Capital of Boise, who is an all-the-way threat on each play. Coeur d'Alene sends along Dave Beauchamps, who fits the human bowling ball standards, 5-9 and 210 pounds.

Called upon for moving the ball for Idaho probably will be Mike Wiscombe, Borah, who was surerlative for the Lions a year ago. Idaho is expected to use Mitch Lansdell, 5-11, 172-pounder from Cyprus, Calif., ot Larry Stonebarger, 5-10, 170-pounder from Oakley, Calif., at quarterback.

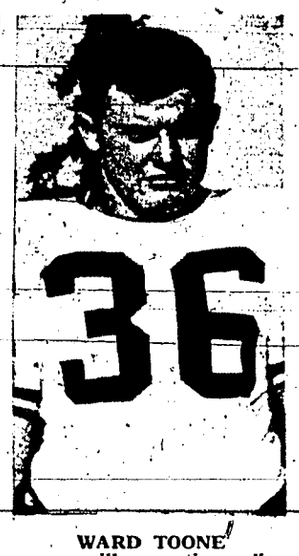

The young Bengals have the ace-up-the-sleeve if it is a close game, however, in Canadian placekicker Joe Petrone, who staged the field goal kicking exhibition here last spring prior to the ISU final scrimmage. ISU boasts that Petrone booted a 68-yarder during a practice session last week, although it was not under any game pressure. He booted a 50-yarder in the exhibition last year.

The game will be interesting from a Twin Falls standpoint in that four men off last year's Bruin squad will be enemies for the first time. ISU has Doug Flint, who probably will see action at defensive halfback although he still sin't completely recovered from a foot injury.

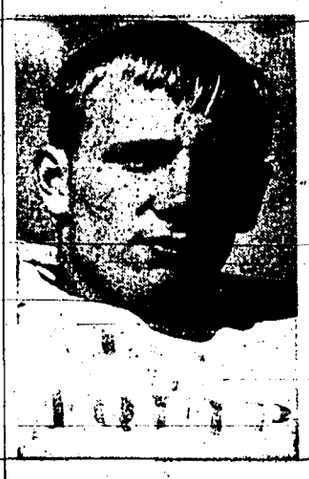

In the line Idaho has guard Flint Carpenter and tight end Scott Swope and every once in a while they'll be colliding with Chris Thompson, now an ISU tackle.

ISU also will use Bruce Rathke, a Wood River High School product, at center, and Randy Watson, who played a lot of tackle for Buhl last year.

Idaho has wingback John Manning from Minico High School and linebacker - fullback Ward Toone from Gooding.

WARD TOONE
. . . will see action as linebacker-fullback for the University of Idaho frosh when they meet the ISU freshmen at 8 p.m. Saturday in Bruin Stadium.

JERRY DUNN
. . . will handle the quarterbacking chores Saturday night when the Idaho State frosh meet the Idaho yearlings at Bruin Stadium. Game time is 8 p.m.

Pen Knife Helps Player Gain Semi-Finals Of Golf Tourney

By TOM REEDY

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Gary Player went into the semifinals of the Picadilly Word Match Play Golf Championship Thursday on a pen-knife produced by a spectator to locate a hole.

Defending Champion Player, from South Africa, defeated U.S. Masters champion Gay Brewer after three extra holes in their 36-hole duel.

It ended in a twilight altercation over where the hole should be. A new hole had been cut for Friday's semifinals and the old one filled in.

Brewer argued that the old hole should be used. A spectator produced a pen-knife to open it up.

The American paid for raising the issue. He took a six, while the 32-year-old South African coolly took a par 4 for the match.

Player, who fell three holes behind at the end of the morning round after Brewer fired a 67 at him, was joined in the semifinals by two of America's most successful pros, Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper, and the veteran Peter Thomson of Australia.

Palmer, the all-time leading money winner among U.S. pros, crushed George Knudson of Canada 5 and 4. Casper, the two-time winner of the U.S. Open who lost a playoff to Brewer in the recent Alcan, smothered the off-form Bruce Devlin of Australia 9 and 8. Thomson, five-time winner of the British Open, came from five holes down for a 1-up victory over Roberto deVincenzo of Argentina, the reigning British Open king.

In the 36-hole semifinals Friday over the 6,997-yard, par 74 Wentworth course, Palmer plays Casper and Player meets Thomson. Casper rallied from seven shots back with nine holes to play in beating Palmer for the American Open crown at San Francisco in 1966.

The 36-hole final is scheduled Saturday, with $4,000 going to the winner.

The Player-Brewer match included an incident that chewed up almost a half-hour discussion over the location of the flag.

The South African hit the 357-yard green on the 39th with his second shot and Brewer was short in a bunker. Then Brewer noticed for the first time that the greens workmen already had started to change position on the hole for Friday's semifinals.

He objected to this and demanded that he be allowed to play to the old hole.

Officials granted the request and borrowed a pen-knife from a spectator to dig out the old hole.

When this was done Brewer blasted out of the bunker 20 feet past it and then three-putted for a six.

Player coolly two-putted for a par 4 and victory.

Wyoming-Utah Tilt Features WAC Slate

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The last time Wyoming played in Salt Lake City, Utah's Redskins turned the Western Athletic Conference football race upside down with a 42-3 victory.

Wyoming came into the 1965 game undefeated and had been regarded as the conference favorite. Brigham Young ended up as champion after Utah started Wyoming's tailspin.

The Cowboys are at Utah again Saturday. And again they are undefeated, this time 4 - 0 over-all and looking for a third 1967 WAC victory that could give them a downhill run to their second straight title.

Arizona State begins league play in a night game at New Mexico, 0-2 in the WAC and 1-3 over-all. A New Mexico victory would leave Wyoming the only team in WAC standings without a loss.

Arizona returns home after a rugged two-game road trip that included a victory over Ohio State and a loss to undefeated Missouri to play University of Texas-El Paso, a WAC member-to-be in 1968. Brigham Young, 26-10 loser last week to Wyoming, takes a 2-1 record to Oregon State. Colorado State, another 1968 new member, goes to North Texas State in search of its first victory in four games.

Bill Weeks, New Mexico coach, says Utah has "about the best defense in the conference." Utah, 2-1, allowed New Mexico 458 yards last Saturday as the Utes won 42 - 27. Utah coach Mike Giddings said he was disappointed with his defense that has allowed 50 points in three games.

Wyoming has allowed 50 points in four games. Converted safety Paul Toscano paces the offense with 10 touchdown passes. Vic Washington has scored 11 touchdowns and Jim Klick supplies power from the tailback position.

Utah's Jack Gehrke is a threat on the option, from which he runs, throws or pitches back to big and fast Charlie Smith, who scored all three touchdowns in a 21-0 win over Oregon.

New Mexico's Terry Stone to Ace Hendricks passing combination will test the Arizona State defense that intercepted five El Paso passes last week in allowing 32 points. ASU won 33-32 on a touchdown by Max Anderson and two - point conversion pass from Rick Shaw to J.D. Hill. Stone has passed for six touchdowns and 1,032 yards.

Arizona, in a 17-3 loss to Missouri, and Brigham Young turned in their poorest offensive showings of the season last week against tough defenses. Arizona has not lost to El Paso since 1957. Brigham Young last played Oregon State in 1961 and lost 35-0.

Game Tonight

The Twin Falls Bruins will host the Boise Braves at 8 p.m. Friday at Bruin Stadium in a Southern Idaho Conference football battle.

Twin Falls is 2-0 in loop play while Boise has split two outings.

WAC Passing Records Are Threatened

DENVER (AP) — Western Athletic Conference Passing records appear to be in jeopardy as New Mexico's Terry Stone and Wyoming's Paul Toscano continue their battle for the lead in total offense.

Running has been a losing proposition for Stone, but in only four games he has passed for 1,032 yards and six touchdowns. Even with a minus 116 yards rushing, he remains the leader with 916.

If Stone continues throwing at his present pace, he could surpass the conference season record of 2,368 yards set last year by Marc Reed of Arizona.

Toscano has thrown for 816 yards and 10 touchdowns to sparks the Cowboys to four straight victories. His total offensive yardage is 833, nearly double third-place Ed Roseborough of Arizona State.

Toscano's passing completion percentage if better than Stone's with 55.6 per cent on 55 completions in 99 attempts. Stone hit 77 of 167 for 46.1 per cent.

The rushing leader, Max Anderson of Arizona State, has carried 61 times for a net of 455 yards—an average of 6.4. Anderson also leads scoring with 36 points on six touchdowns.

Ace Hendricks of New Mexico leads in pass receiving. He caught the ball 33 times for 552 yards. Phil Odle, Brigham Young, is second with 26 for 380 yards.

Wes Holik of BYU leads WAC punters with an average of 44.4 yards.

USC's Away, Challengers Will Play

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's challengers' week in the Pacific - 8 Conference football wars as the pace-setter in the run for the roses of the Rose Bowl, Southern California journeys to the Midwest to engage Notre Dame.

While national attention is focused on the big skirmish at South Bend, and the Trojans attempt to uphold their No. 1 national ranking and the prestige of their own conference, here's the picture on the coast:

UCLA, Washington and California are all 1-0 in the conference championship race and the right to meet the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day. At this point, they're the challengers.

Southern Cal is 2-0 and, like the Bruins of UCLA, are the only unbeaten and untied teams in the Pacific - 8 after four games.

California and UCLA meet head-on in Los Angeles Saturday night as the season presses toward the halfway mark, the winner to bump the loser down one notch in the win-loss standings.

The Washington Huskies, having upended previously unbeaten Oregon State, can improve their record in a game with Oregon at Eugene, and Stanford and Washington State, each 0-2 in the loop, face off at Stanford.

Oregon State, 1-1 in the conference, goes outside the fold to play Brigham Young at Corvallis.

San Jose State plays at Utah State and University of Pacific is at West Texas State.

Flowery adjectives have been written to describe USC quarterback Steve Sogge, halfback O. J. Simpson and pass catchers Earl McCulloch and Jimmy Lawrence.

The praise is with merit. But the hard-boiled people who dictate such things as odds and points like Notre Dame by 12—yes 12—points.

Thus far the Pacific-8 struggle is going on pretty much as most observers predicted before the thing started.

USC and UCLA are the front runners but the Washington Huskies, on occasion slow starters, are in contention.

WSU Conducts Light Workout

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—The crippled Washington State University Cougars dressed in sweat suits Thursday for a light and final workout before leaving Friday to meet Stanford at Palo Alto Saturday.

Coach Bert Clark, noting five defensive players are out of the lineup for Saturday, said "we are as ready for Stanford as we can hope."

Among those on the ailing list is fast end Bob Simpson, still suffering a knee injury from the UCLA game three weeks ago. "The Cougar offense has been crippled by the loss of Simpson," Clark said.

The Cougars fly to Palo Alto at 4 p.m. Friday.

Eddy Undergoes Knee Surgery

DETROIT (AP) — Hard-luck Nick Eddy of the Detroit Lions, who injured his right knee in an exhibition football game at San Diego Aug. 20, reinjured it Tuesday and underwent surgery Thursday.

The rookie halfback, who signed an estimated $300,000 contract after he wound up his collegiate career at Notre Dame, apparently will be out at least another six weeks.

Chico State Has Torrid Passing Duo

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Joe Stetser and Ron Morelli of California's Chico State form the hottest battery in the ranks of small college football teams this year.

Statistics compiled by the National Collegiate Sports Service Thursday showed Stetser the leading passer among college division teams with 86 completions in 174 attempts for 875 yards. He has hit for four touchdowns.

Almost half of his passes have fallen into the arms of Morelli, who tops the pass receiving department with 35 receptions for 391 yards and one touchdown.

Rich Lichtel of Bloomsburg, Pa., has compiled more yardage through the air than any other small college passer this year—1,322 yards on 83 completions—and this has enabled him to take the lead in individual total offense.

In four games, Lichtel has accounted for 1,233 yards, meaning he's lost nearly 100 yards on the ground. Only one other small college back has gained over 1,000 yards. Mike Schneider of Wilmington has 1,027.

Doug Van Boven of Central Iowa is the rushing leader with 809 yards, 171 more than the second best ball-carrier, Phil Rome of Hampden-Sydney, with 638.

Van Boven also is the scoring leader with 66 points on six touchdowns, followed by Stan Kucharski of Bloomsburg with 64.

Auto Safety Standards Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cribs and playpens for infant auto passengers, windshields that don't pop out and roll bars for motorcycles are among 47 new motor vehicle safety standards the government is considering.

The proposals, announced Thursday by Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd, would become effective in 1969 or later.

The first federal safety standards were issued earlier this year.

Cribs and other restraints for infants would be an extension of an earlier standard which requires seat belts for children up to 50 pounds who are able to sit upright.

The proposed amended standard calls for "rearward facing infant seats, forward facing infant seats and portable cribs and playpens . . . "

New cars apparently would be required to have fittings so such devices could be installed by owners, a department spokesman said.

The motorcycle standard would require foot rests, roll bars and exhaust system covers.

The windshield standard, intended to keep people from being thrown out of vehicles during crashes, would require mountings to prevent pop outs.

These and seven other standards would be effective Jan. 1, 1969. Law requires the government to announce proposals in advance so interested parties can make suggestions.

Wilt Won't Comment On His Salary

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain, the 7-foot-1 superstar of the Philadelphia 76ers, said Thursday he was satisfied with his new contract. But if you want to know how much he got, ask the Internal Revenue Service, not Wilt.

"Ask the IRS," Chamberlain said Thursday. "They'll be getting most of it."

Chamberlain, all-time scoring giant of the National Baskbetball Association, ended a long holdout seige Wednesday night. He signed a contract rumored to be in the neighborhood of $250,000. If the figure is true, then Chamberlain is among the highest-paid athletes.

On Thursday, at a news conference with coach Alex Hannum and owner Irv Kosloff, owner of last year's NBA champion 76ers, Chamberlain told newsmen:

"Yesterday, I signed a one-year, standard, NBA contract. I'm satisfied that I got a contract for what I thought I was worth."

The phrase, "standard contract," might have been the key. Chamberlain has claimed the reserver clause, binding a player to an NBA club for another year, was dismissed by the 76ers last year in his case. The move allowed him to make a deal with teams in the fledgling American Basketball League, he has said.

The "standard NBA contract" apparently would bind the big center to the 76ers in contract dealings next year.

"The reserve clause has been resolved," said Chamberlain. "After the season, I'll be just like any other player."

Gibson Wins Third Game In Pitching Cards Past Sox 7-2 In Title Battle

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — "We have nothing to be ashamed of," Boston Manager Dick Williams said Thursday after the St. Louis Cardinals — behind the three-hit pitching of Bob Gibson — had beaten his Red Sox 7-2 in the final game of the 1967 World Series.

"Give them the credit," Williams said. "They deserve it. Gibson is one helluva pitcher."

Gibson joined Christy Mathewson in the record book and hit a home run, and Lou Brock broke a 58-year-old stolen base mark as the Red Sox' fond dreams vanished in the chill of a cloudy October afternoon.

Jim Lonborg, a two-time winner with two magnificent efforts, simply was not up to matching the big Cardinal right-hander in a valiant attempt to come back with only two days of rest.

It was a bitter, frustrating day for Lonborg, the former Stanford premed student, who was battered for 10 hits and all seven runs in six innings.

Making his third winning start and complete game, Gibson joined the tight little circle of six men who also have compiled 3-0 Series records, the last being Lew Burdette of Milwaukee in 1957.

Gibson also tied Red Ruffing's 26-year-old mark by winning his fifth straight complete game in Series play. That marked him the hero in both 1964 and 1967. It took Ruffing four Series to win five straight complete.

Speedy Lou Brock set a Series record of seven stolen bases and tied two more marks with three in one game and two in an inning as the Cards, who once held a 3-1 edge in this competition, finally closed it out with a victory before 38,188 fans at Fenway Park.

Brock who finished up with 12 hits, one short of another record, wound up with a .414 batting average. The last time a base stealer did so brightly in a Series was Pepper Martin for the 1931 Cards' Gashouse Gang when he stole five and batted .500 against the old Philadelphia A's.

As Gibson struck out George Scott, his 10th victim, for the final out of the Series, a wild mob of Cardinals sped to the mound to shake his hand and pound his back. A young man grabbed Orlando Cepeda's cap and raced for safety past a line of tackle minded special guards. One cop finally brought him to earth and the cap was saved to the boos of the crowd.

Gibson had won the opener 2-1, the fourth game 6-0 and now closed it out by allowing a total of 14 hits, the lowest for three complete games since Christy Mathewson's three shutouts and 14 hits for the New York Giants in 1905.

The strong-throwing Cardinal right-hander, working with three days rest after Sunday's shutout, had a no-hitter going until Scott opened the fifth with a triple off the wall in center. Scott came all the way home to score when Julian Javier's relay throw sailed past third base into the Cards' dugout.

Boston picked up another mean-nothing run in the eighth on a double by Rico Petrocelli, a wild pitch and pinch hitter Norm Sieborn's force out.

Manager Red Schoendienst went out to talk with Gibson in the seventh when he went 2-1 on Ken Harrelson after Carl Yastrzemski walked. Pitching coach Billy Muffett went to the mound in the eighth after the wild pitch to pinch hitter Dalton Jones. Red made the stroll again in the ninth after Yaz opened with a single. Gibson obviously asked to stay and got permission.

The next man, Harrelson, grounded into a double play and Gibson struck out Scott.

It was a brilliant comeback for Gibson who was out of action from July 15 to Sept. 6 with a broken leg and barely regained his sharpness in time for the Series.

The Series triumph, the Cards' fourth in a row, meant about $8,900 to each St. Louis player. Each of the losing Red Sox will get about $5,606 but they already had enough glory for their spectacular rise from ninth place in 1966 to the pennant in 1967 on the final day of the season.

If it was a day of wild excitement for the Red Birds, it was a cloudy, cool afternoon of heartbreak for Lonborg, the handsome Stanford graduate who had pitched so magnificently in winning his first two starts.

Trying to bounce back without sufficient rest, Gentleman Jim was bombed by the Cards and was left in there to take a rough going over in the sixth when Javier's three-run homer drove the final nails in the Red Sox's coffin.

"Beautiful" Covers Situation For Cards

By BEN BROWN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Beautiful: That was the word heard most often in the St. Louis clubhouse Thursday as the Cardinals celebrated their 7-2 victory over Boston in the seventh and deciding game of the 1967 World Series.

Dal Maxvill, whose triple started the Redbird scoring, sipped champagne and said: "When we get the hammer on a ball club, we're going to win most of the time."

The National League champions got the hammer on the Red Sox with two runs in the third inning. Big Bob Gibson, the winning pitcher, got the third and what proved to be the deciding run himself with a home run at the flagpole in left center field.

Lou Brock, who erased a 58-year-old record when he swiped second in the ninth inning, said he was aware that he could set a record. "When you can do that, you try if you get the chance," he said.

"Boston kept bouncing back in the Series," Brock explained, "but we knew we must win today.

"We haven't had a pressure game since July 24 (when Chicago briefly tied the Cards for the National League lead)," Brock said. "This is the first time since then that we had a 'must' win."

Julian Javier, the St. Louis second baseman, put the game out of reach with a homer to left field in the sixth inning, knocking in three runs.

"I wasn't trying to hit the ball hard," Javier said. "I hit it and it went up there."

Javier said that had the Redbirds' two big guns — Orlando Cepeda and Tim McCarver — hit better in the Series "we could have beat them in five games.

"But we win like this all year — someone picks up someone else," Javier explained.

Red Schoendienst, who has a world championship in his third season as manager, said he never was close to taking Gibson out of the game.

"But if he had walked Ken Harrelson in the ninth, I would have seriously considered it," Schoendienst said. Harrelson hit into a double play and Gibson struck out George Scott to end the game.

"He was tired," Schoendienst continued, "and I had Nelson Briles in good shape in the bullpen. Gibson wasn't as sharp this time as in the first game — but he didn't have to be."

When asked what he said to the team before the game, the St. Louis skipper replied:

"Nothing. I gave the ball to Gibson."

Schoendienst said that he felt the difference between the two clubs was pitching.

"Good pitching will beat good hitting every time," he said.

Roger Maris, the St. Louis right fielder who had eight hits in the Series, praised Boston. "They had a good ball club," he said.

"I learned when I was with the (New York) Yankees that you take all teams seriously, and you don't anticipate a team can be handled lightly," Maris said.

Maxvill, who made the final out in the 1964 World Series in which the Cardinals beat the Yankees, was asked if he wanted to make the final out this time. Maxvill thought a minute and said:

"No, I wanted it to end just like it did — Bob Gibson striking out the last batter."

Williams Feels No Shame Over Losing

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) —"We have nothing to be ashamed of—give them credit—they deserve it."

Dick Williams, winding up his rookie season as manager of the Boston Red Sox, saluted the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday after the National League champions won the seventh and deciding game of the world series 7-2 behind Bob Gibson's three-hit pitching.

"Give all the credit in the world to Gibson," Williams said. "He's one helluva pitcher. I would have to say he was the outstanding player in the series. After all, he beat us three times."

Williams was surrounded by reporters making virtually the only noise in the cemetery-like clubhouse. He praised St. Louis, but had glowing words for his Red Sox.

"I still like this club," he said. "We have nothing to be ashamed of, nothing at all. This is a young club and we had to work one game harder all season. I'm proud of them all. And we'll be back next year."

Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey, accompanied by Dick O'Connell, vice president and general manager, walked around the clubhouse, patting players on the back and thanking them.

"This has been a great season," Yawkey said. "I have a lot of happy memories."

Boston ace Jim Lonborg, pounded for all seven St. Louis runs in six innings while trying to pitch with only two days rest, and slugger Carl Yastrzemski hid in a closed training room for nearly one-half hour after the game. Finally, Yastrzemski emerged.

"St. Louis is a great ball club —and so are we," Yaz said. "I think if we had another seven-game series it would go down to who had the most rest—Gibson or Lonborg. I'm sorry that Lonborg didn't have it this time.

"In a way, this is a big disappointment, but, in another way, it gives us something to work for next year. I'm still happy the way we bounced back all season—and we'll be back in there next season. Gibson? He's one of the finest."

Lonborg, who hurled a one-hitter and a three-hitter in his first two starts against St. Louis, admitted he didn't have his best stuff, but he tried to dodge any excuses.

"Maybe I wasn't so sharp because I had only two days rest," the 22-game winner during the regular season said. "However, I made some bad pitches. Dick wanted to take me out in the sixth, but I wanted to stay in there. As long as my arm feels good, I want to stay in the game."

Lonborg said that with runners on first and second and the Cardinals in front 4-1 with none out in the sixth he and Williams thought Julian Javier would be bunting.

"Then I got ahead of him (one ball and two strikes) and I hung a slider," Lonborg said.

Javier drilled the slider into the left field screen for a three-run homer, giving the Cardinals a 7-1 cushion.

"Pitching is concentration and maybe I didn't concentrate hard enough," Lonborg said.

Williams said that Lonborg "didn't have his real good stuff, but we kept checking every inning and he said he was okay."

"I went out there to take him out in the sixth, but he wanted to continue," Williams said.

Pocatello Drops T.F. Sophs 15-12

Pocatello's sophs stopped a late Twin Falls drive inside the 15-yard line, then replied — with the help of 30 yards in penalties against the young Bruins — with an 80-yard scoring march to pull out a 15-12 victory Thursday night.

Albert Owino, a soccer-style kicker from Kenya, Africa, booted a 38-yard field goal to put Pocatello ahead but Twin Falls came right back on a series of end sweeps to reclaim the lead when Randy Cummins swept in from the four.

Pocatello worked an onsides kick successfully as the second half open and drove 49-yards for a touchdown, Jim Wheeler going in from the one.

Late in the third quarter Twin Falls took possession on a fumble deep in Pocatello territory and John Turner went in from the four.

With 1:44 remaining Jerry Jackson went three yards on a reverse to ice the win for Pocatello.

Idaho And Montana Swap Teams In Big Sky Conference Action

By NEIL BIBLER

Idaho and Montana swap teams in Big Sky Conference football action Saturday while Utah's Weber State College entertains Parsons College of Fairfield, Iowa, at Ogden in a non-conference game.

Unbeaten Montana University will be trying for its fifth straight victory and a second conference triumph in Missoula against the University of Idaho, 1-1 in league play. The noon game will be televised regionally.

Montana State travels to Pocatello for a fracas with winless Idaho State. Montana State has a leg up on the title and has won its last three games after dropping two at the start of the season.

Montana Grizzly coach Jack Swarthout, his eye on the stunting tactics of Idaho's Vandals, has put his offensive linemen through special sessions this week. Swarthous also has a pair of quarterbacks battling for the starting position with the stress on passing. Swarthout says the nod could go to either Ed Steiner or Pete Mullins.

Idaho's coach Steve Musseau also is concerned with his team's offensive blocking, which he blames for the lack of an effective Vandal ground game in last week's 41-14 loss to Montana State.

Musseau's drill sessions also have anticipated short Grizzly passes while concentrating on developing some of their own for the Vandals. They plan to avoid Montana's muscle in the middle by running wide in the ground attack.

Coach Jim Sweeney of Montana State says he's concerned about the outcome of the Bobcats' clash with Idaho State since the Montanans haven't won at Pocatello since 1964. Sweeney calls Idaho State the Bobcat nemesis and has been warning his squad to "get prepared and stay prepared.

"The thing that could hurt us most now would be to have a letdown," Sweeney said? "We fully expect we'll have to fight for our lives at Pocatello."

Idaho State's chief threat is Bill Ingram, considered to be the best passer in the school's history and currently fifth in league passing statistics. Ingram's favorite targets are speedy Ed Bell and split ends Bob Odom and Jim Rackley, but Bell may still be sidelined by a hip injury.

Weber State made its record 2-2 by downing Los Angeles State College 13-3 last weekend. Saturday's contest with Parsons will be the first meeting between the two teams.

Parsons went into the Pecan Bowl with a 9-1 record last year, then lost to North Dakota University. The team, sporting the same Wildcat nickname that Weber uses, is expected to be stronger this year at every position except center.

Auto Khana, Rally Slated For Weekend

The ninth annual Sun Valley Rally and Auto Khana, sponsored by the Southwest Idaho Sports Car Club of Boise, will be conducted this weekend.

The rally, expected to attract about 60 cars, will leave Jerome at 11 a.m. Saturday while the Auto Khana, an exercise in driving skill against the clock, will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday in Sun Valley.

Trophies for the event will be awarded Sunday afternoon. In addition, awards for the Idaho State championship, consisting of the top men and women drivers accumulating the highest points for driving skill over the past season will be presented.

The event also has attracted Jean Calvin, rally editor of the Sports Car Graphic Magazine.

Idaho Polishes Grid Attack

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) —The University of Idaho Vandals polished offensive and defensive tactics Thursday in the final tune-up for Saturday's Big Sky football encounter with Montana at Missoula.

Coach Steve Musseau announced two lineup changes. Defensive corner back and kicker Darrell Danielson will not play because of ruptured blood vessels in the neck and will be replaced by sophomore Wayne Marquess of Wenatchee, Wash.

Musseau also said safety Dick Nelson lost his starting spot to senior Byron Strickland of Portland.

"I think we are 100 per cent ready for Montana," Musseau said. "This will also be the first time this year that we have outweighed our opponent man-for-man." Saturday's game will be televised in the Rocky Mountain Region.

Oregon Points Toward WSU

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Coach Jerry Frei ran the University of Oregon football team through an unusually heavy workout Thursday in preparation for Saturday's game against Washington.

Frei said he was pleased with the workout and said he would have no drill Friday. He announced that Steve Kantola, split end, will start in place of the injured Benny Schuler. Tackle Warner Wong is also injured, but is expected to see action.

There was nothing wrong with Len Dawson's scoring touch that three days of rain couldn't cure.

Dawson, forced into a passing game by steady rains which left the field muddy, hurled five touchdown passes in Kansas City's 41-0 rout of Miami last Sunday and was named the American Football League's Offensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press.

There had been some concern in the Chiefs' camp when Dawson passed for only four TDs in the first three games this season. But the combination of rain and a Miami blitz changed all that.

"The field was muddy, bad for the running game," explained Dawson, who completed 13 of 23 for 250 yards including the five TDs. "They were blitzing, which meant man-for-man coverage on our receivers. So I threw."

Fred Arbanas and Otis Taylor each caught two TD passes from Dawson and it was the first Chiefs' TD — a 77-yard scoring pitch to Taylor on an impromptu play — that broke down the Dolphins for the day.

It was third down with one yard to go and Dawson sent Mike Garrett off tackle. The Dolphins diagnosed the play and Garrett was stopped cold. Dawson, seeing the Miami line ganging up on Garrett, called for the ball. As Garrett went down, he lateraled back to the quarterback.

"I was going to run. We only needed one yard," said Dawson. "I just glanced downfield and there was Otis, all by himself. He was so wide open, I just had to throw the ball."

Taylor, whose assignment on the play was to block the safetyman, had seen Garrett in trouble. "I started back to help out but when I heard Lenny calling for the ball, I just took off and ran downfield."

Dawson hit Taylor all alone and the Dolphins never recovered.

Declo And Oakley Earn Spots In Football Playoff

Declo and Oakley have clinched berths in the inter-conference playoff between the Magic Valley Conference and the fifth district alignment. The champions and runners - up in the two leagues will meet Nov. 4 at American Falls, the runners-up playing at 11 a.m. and the champions going immediately after.

Although it is still possible that the Magic Valley Conference could end up in a tie, the format for breaking the deadlock appears to have the combatants settled.

In cases of ties, the determining factor will be the game played between the schools in the deadlock. Declo, by dropping Oakley 41-14, could share the conference trophy with the Hornets but because of that decision earns the right to carry the championship designation for playoff purposes.

It also is possible the Oakley could be dropped into a second-place tie with Murtaugh but the Hornets defeated the Red Devils in their meeting and that settled that.

Declo must meet Raft River and Oakley plays Hansen in the final league games of the year.

Westside, a consolidated school at Dayton, already has wrapped up the title in the fifth district and will be Declo's opponent. Ironically, the two teams had a non - conference game scheduled but canceled it through mutual agreement to make the playoff more interesting. Oakley's opponent still isn't settled as yet.

Officials of the Magic Valley Conference wish to offer public thanks to Glenns Ferry High School for releasing Declo from a regular-season game contract for Nov. 3. This removed the last obstacle facing the playoff plan.

The conferences are hopeful that the playoffs will be a success and serve as a starting point toward state - sanctioned championship tournaments in football.

New Concrete Pipe Technique Introduced

By ROBERT VANAUSDELN
Times-News Farm Editor

A new technique in concrete pipe has been introduced in this area.

This concrete pipe has no joints and is not reinforced, but will withstand tremendous amount of pressure, both internal and external.

This pipe is unique because it is cast right in the trench and has the principles of the age-proved arch design, thus saving as much as 30 to 50 per cent of what pre-cast concrete pipe would cost installed.

No-Joint cast-in-place concrete pipe is the first to incorporate the arch design into concrete pipe construction. The arch design has served civilization for thousands of years. The oldest arch designed sewers in Rome and Athens are non-reinforced and still in use.

P and E Concrete Co., Twin Falls, used this technique last week on a job for the Twin Falls Canal Co. About one-half mile lateral was replaced by the No-Joint cast-in-place concrete pipe. This is the first time such a pipe has been laid in this part of the country.

According to D. L. Pace, P and E Concrete Co., the local firm has the franchise of the method in this area and plans to use it on future jobs that require pipe of 24 inches or larger. If the job requires smaller pipe, then the reinforced concrete pipe with joints will be used.

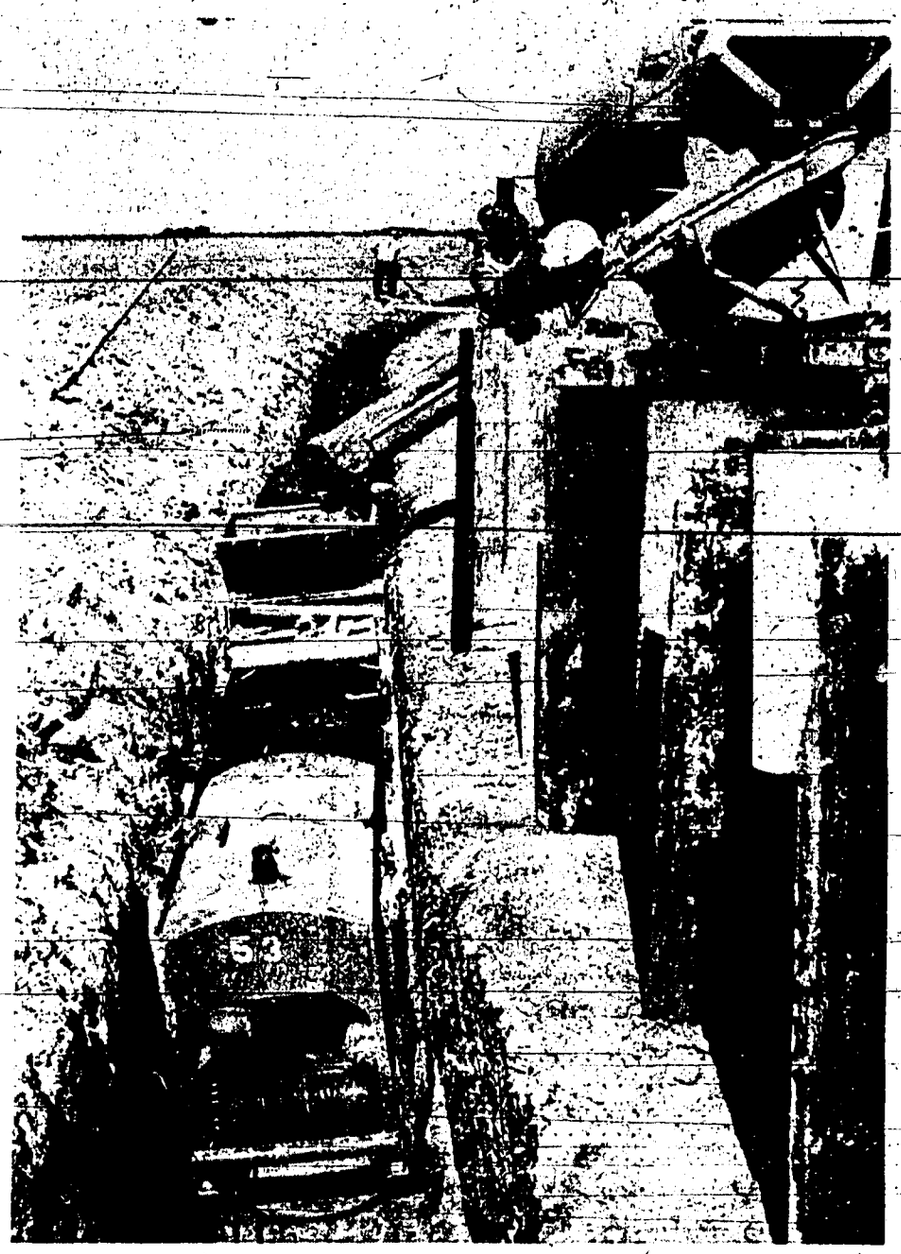

According to L. G. (Muggs) Schroeder, W. M. Lynch Co., Dixon, Calif., from which the equipment was leased by P and E Concrete Co., the pipe is cast-in-place with an extra margin of thickness at the spring line, features jointless construction and a near perfect bond with the bottom and supporting side walls of the trench.

Equipment used for the No-Joint pipe includes a No-Joint concrete pipe slip form, aluminum forms and concrete and trenching equipment.

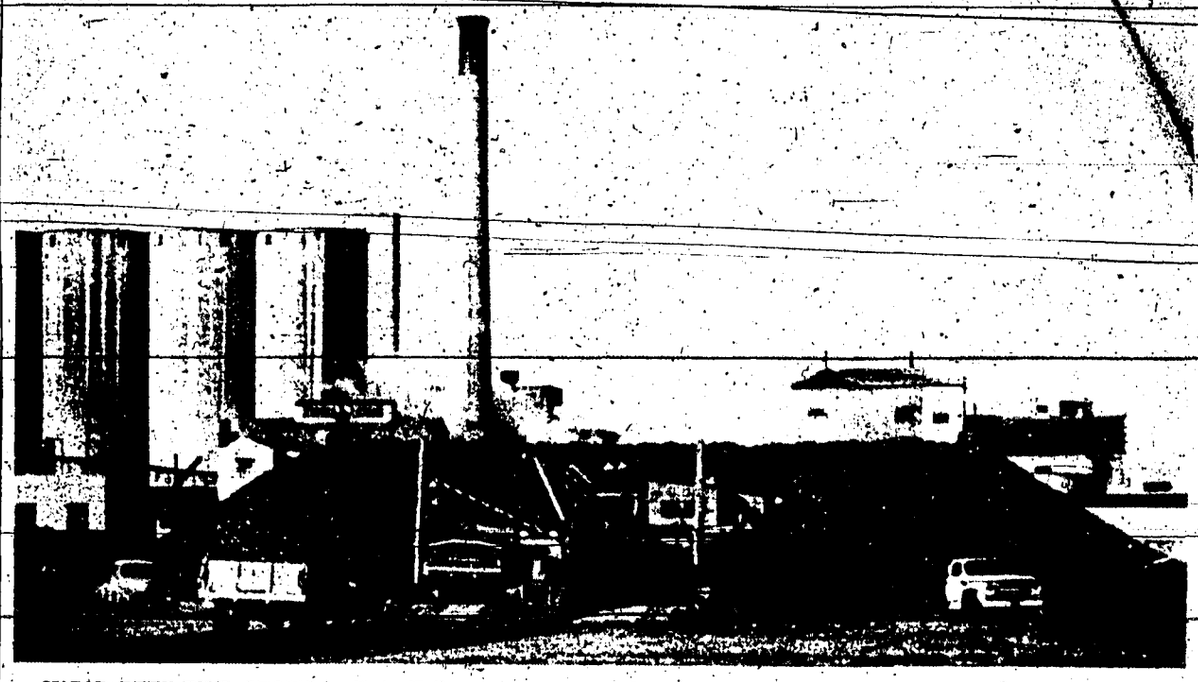

The No-Joint slip form features simplicity. It consists of a steel sled or slip which closely fits both sides and semi-circular bottom of the excavated trench. A gasoline engine is mounted on the bottom and forward end of the slip form. This engine operates a manually controlled, variable speed cable drum which propels the slip form forward by means of a steel cable attached to a dead-man which may be located either in or outside of the trench.

The engine also operates a generator-electric motor assembly which in turn supplies power to two vibrators mounted on CONCRETE POURS into the hopper of the No-Joint concrete pipe slip form as it moves along the trench casting the pipe. This pipe has no joints, is not reinforced and is cast in place. This type of concrete pipe is the first of its kind in Magic Valley and Idaho. P and E Concrete Co., Twin Falls, used this technique last week on a lateral north of Curry for the Twin Falls Canal Co. Forms for the pipe are on the right, next to the trench.

SUGAR BEET PILE GROWS as Twin Falls area farmers haul beets to the Amalgamated Sugar Co. factory this week. Harvesting of the sugar beets in Magic Valley began earlier this week. Amalgamated officials say the beets this year are about what they expected, but the sugar content is down at present. However, with colder weather the next few weeks, the sugar content will rise. Sugar beet yield is estimated to average about 21 to 22 tons per acre in the Twin Falls district.

Record Set By Angus Cattlemen

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Cattlemen who raise registered Angus beef cattle broke a major record in the past 12 months, according to a recent announcement from Glen Bratcher, secretary of the American Angus Association, St. Joseph, Mo.

During the organization's fiscal year which ended Sept. 30, registrations of purebred calves soared above 400,000 to set a new high mark for the black, hornless breed. The 1967 total was 404,348, up nearly four per cent over 1966.

New Potato Variety Looks "Promising"

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, MOSCOW — A potato seedling identified only by number looks "very promising," Richard Ohms, potato specialist of the University of Idaho extension service, reported today.

The advanced plant, A 589-65, impressed members of the Idaho potato selection committee at a recent meeting at the Aberdeen branch experiment station where hundreds of seedlings are tested annually in a long-range program. J. J. Pavek directs the breeding program.

The seedling produced larger yields of quality potatoes than the Russet Burbank, had higher specific gravity, better tuber shape, more resistance to early dying, blight, scab, and tuber greening, Ohms said. A limitation, howeves, was found in tuber size. Potatoes from the seedling are generally smaller than the Russet.

Regardless of its potential, A 589-65 has many hurdles to cross before it can be brought into the production picture.

"Only two sacks of foundation seed are available," Ohms said. "Many steps are necessary in introducing this, or any other new variety of potato. There are exciting possibilities but the industry will have to be patient. Time will tell."

Area Motorists Warned About Traffic Hazards Of Harvesting Equipment

BOISE—The annual beet harvest and moving of the crop to processing plants pose additional highway traffic hazards, the Idaho State Police points out, and urges all vehicle operators to be aware of this seasonal highway congestion.

ISP Superintendent L. Clark Hand reminds motorists there will be additional slow-moving and overwidth vehicles on the roadways, including beet-hauling trucks and harvesting equipment.

"The motorists, Hand says, "must be alert to trucks and equipment pulling out from farm yards and fields as well as at rural intersections."

The superintendent also notes that trucks and equipment often leave mud and other debris on the highways, making them more treacherous than usual.

Beet haulers, he says, often drop beets on the roadways. "These can be formidable obstacles and when squashed can create slick areas," Hand says.

The superintendent asks all vehicle operators to drive with extra caution during the beet harvest season and to be prepared to meet emergencies which might result from these operations.

"Operators of trucks hauling beets and those operating harvest machinery should cooperate with others o fthe motoring public to prevent accidents," Hand says.

He suggests that harvesting equipment be well identified and that truckers obey all rules of the road.

The beet harvest adds to local traffic problems, Hand notes, and adds, "Cooperation of all is needed if we are to prevent accidents which might involve this seasonal operating equipment."

Promoted

BOISE — The advancement of William Bridenbaugh to the position of general manager of Boise Cascade's Container Division, was announced today by F. P. Thompson Jr., vice president.

Bridenbaugh has been western regional manager of the division since 1965, with offices at Sunnyvale, Calif. He joined the company in 1958 as a sales representative, and became general manager of the Wallula, Wash., container plant in 1962.

Japan: Our Biggest Customer

WASHINGTON — Japan is the American farmer's biggest cash customer. She spent over a billion dollars last year for U. S. farm and ranch produce ranging from soybeans and cotton to hides.

Japan is not only one of the world's great markets for food and feed today, it is an expanding market. Last year she was able to produce 80 per cent of her food; this year 79 per cent, next year 78 per cent. This is not only the result of an increased population since Japan has increased only one per cent per year since the war years. She is also losing land to industry and housing developments.

Japanese farms are small and are predominantly owned by the operator. Following World War II Japan purchased land from the large landowners and sold it on reasonable long-term arrangements to the tennant farmer. Most farmers do not own more than seven acres. There are five and a half million farms with almost four million under two and a half acres. Their problems are similar to those of American farmers even though the farms are small.

The number of farms is gradually diminishing and the size of farms increasing. Japanese land is the most intensely farmed in the world.

In some areas double cropping is practiced. Or you might see several rows of soybeans or even cabbages on the narrow borders that edge the ricefields.

Harvesting 2.4 to 2.7 acres of crops from each acre is not uncommon. They practice what might be called three-dimensional agriculture with rather deep furrows between ridges. This way they can raise a quick crop of radishes, while in the furrows they are growing eggplants. After the radishes, they will put wheat on the ridges, harvesting the eggplants later from the furrows and replacing it with cucumbers.

With the search for better seed, the ever-increasing use of fertilizer, insecticides, herbicides, and the increasing mechanization, Japanese farmers are pushing their yield figures higher. But in all this they are losing the race toward self-sufficiency.

In Japan self-sufficiency is a political hot potato. The nationalists and many city people demand that this be the objective of government programs, and on paper, it is. Actually, the realists point out that every new acre reclaimed from the mountains for agriculture is done so at a totally uneconomical price. Rice is a government monopoly and is heavily subsidized. The consumer, buying retail, pays about one per cent less than the farmer gets from government. In other words, the farmer's share of the consumer rice dollar is $1.01. Wheat is subsidized at about $3.75 a bushel, soybeans at almost $5 a bushel.

In addition to short supply and high support prices, a rising standard of living is at work to increase imports. Since the war Japan has rebuilt her cities and her factories and has risen to become the fifth most powerful industrial nation in the world.

The article titled "Cash Customer-Japan" appears in the Farm Quarterly, fall issue, and Editor Grant Cannon gives expanded facts in this special article. This issue is on the newsstands the last of September in farming areas.

ALUMINUM FORMS are put into place in the No-Joint concrete pipe slip form by workmen. As the slip form moves along the trench, it casts the concrete pipe around the aluminum forms. This pipe has no joints and withstands tremendous amounts of pressure.

New Technique In Concrete Piping Introduced In Area

each side and near the bottom of the inside traveling form.

This inside form, outside top form and hopper make up the mandrel assembly or traveling form. This assembly is attached to the steel sled by hinges which permit the traveling form to adapt itself to the bottom of the trench.

Inside the hopper is an electric powered spading mechanism. As concrete is poured into the hopper, the spading mechanism moves the concrete between the traveling form under high frequency vibration. Both the speed of the spading mechanism and the frequency of vibrations are controlled according to the slump of concrete used.

As the slip form moves forward, aluminum, semi-circular forms are fed into the mandrel where they are automatically oiled and manually hooked together. These forms then come in contact and support the top 230 degree of the inside pipe, being rigidly held in place by struts.

The forms, which are four feet in length and made of 20 gauge aluminum sheet alloy, remain in the pipe from four to six hours or, until the concrete takes its initial set. After the concrete takes its initial set, the collapsible aluminum forms are turned over and pulled out.

The No-Joint cast-in-place concrete pipe more than meets the requirements imposed upon reinforced pre-cast concrete pipe for such low pressure applications as storm drains, sanitary and outfall sewers, irrigation lines, culverts, etc.

And in conclusion, according to the W. M. Lynch Co., there has "never been a failure from external loading in over two million feet."

Fall Range Bull Sale Set Oct. 27 At Filer

FILER — The Idaho Cattlemen's Association will sponsor its 28th annual Filer Fall Range Bull Sale on Friday, Oct. 27, at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Filer, beginning at 11 a.m., according to word received from Pat Allen, Cascade, manager of the sale.

Allen stated there are 190 Herefords, both polled and horned, all over 16 months and under 30 months of age consigned to the sale by registered cattle breeders from Idaho and Utah.

All of the bulls are registered and will be graded into classes of A, A minus, B plus, and B by Jack Pierce, Malta, commercial cattleman; Farrel Daniels, Malad, purebred breeder, and Joe Dahmen, superintendent, Caldwell Branch Experiment Station, said Allen. Grading will begin at 10 a.m., Thursday, Oct. 26. Each bull will be inspected for visual defects by Dr. D. A. Jackson, deputy state veterinarian from Twin Falls, during the grading at the Fairgrounds.

Allen also stated the Filer sale has maintained its record of being the largest Range Bull Sale in the Northwest and has been long noted for its outstanding offering of top quality bulls of excellent type, breeding characteristics, classification, and ability to produce top calves.

The Idaho Cattlemen's Association, in its continual program of improving the quality of Idaho beef, and for the convenience of the cattlemen of Idaho, began these sales 28 years ago. The sales in the fall at Filer, Idaho Falls, and Nampa, and one each spring at Filer, have brought the best of breeding bulls to these central points for the convenience of both the consignor and the buyer.

Holding the sale on Friday is a change for the cattlemen since the sale has been held on Saturday for many years. A Friday sale lets ranchers attend, who in previous years had to stay close to the ranch because opening day for pheasant and deer hunting is always on a Saturday. Also new this sale will be the printing of the word "cleared" in the catalog on each pedigree that has been cleared by the American Hereford Association.

Auctioneers will be Si Williams, Caldwell, and Clayton Tschirgi, Fruitland. Members of the Idaho Cattlemen's Bull Sale Committee include Pat Allen, Cascade, co-chairman; Ralph Steele, Idaho Falls, co-chairman; James Breckenridge, Tetonia; Farrel Daniels, Malad; Albert Wolfkiel, Meridian; Gus Erickson, Almo; Tom Shaw, Nampa; Wayne Naugle, Nampa; Clyde McAfee, Gooding; Lewis Rothwell, Arco, and Tom Chivers, Challis.

Clark, Buhl; Farrell Daniels, Malad; Russell Daniels and Sons, Malad; Rex Daniels, Malad; Mrs. Roy Daniels, Malad, and Arthur J. DeVisser, Filer.

The four even have names —Eeny, Meeny, Miny and Mo.

Idaho Has Adequate Hay Supply

BOISE — Idaho has adequate supplies of hay as winter approaches, an economist of the University of Idaho extension service said today in the October summary of economic facts.

Quentin D. Banks said production is estimated at 3,409,000 tons. That is nine per cent more than the short crop last year and 30 per cent above the five-year average. Idaho pasture conditions are better than average and substantially above a year ago at the same time.

States bordering Idaho all report bigger hay crops than last year. National production is also above average.

A large potato crop is being harvested, Banks said. If no major problems develop, the supply of marketable potatoes is expected to be one of the largest Idaho has ever had, although it is not likely to equal the record of 1966. The forecast Sept. 1 was about 62 million per hundredweight. The crop last year was 12 per cent more, but freeze damage cut into the supply available for food.

Potato processing in Idaho and Malheur County, Oregon, reached a new high for the July, 1966-June, 1967 period. Nearly 38 million hundredweight were processed. That is six per cent more than the record from the 1965 crop and 68 per cept more than the 1960-1964 average. Potatoes that went to processing from the 1966 crop exceeded the entire Idaho production for any year prior to 1955.

Present prospects indicate the national supply of potatoes for food may be about the same from the 1967 crop as it was from each of the two previous years. The 1966 marketing year was characterized by problems of quality control and violent price fluctuation. The 1965 marketing year was much more satisfactory to the potato industry. It seems reasonable now, banks said, to expect the marketing environment for the 1967 crop of Idaho potatoes to be more like that of 1965 than 1966.

Large stocks of frozen french fries that depressed the market through the spring and early summer have been substantially reduced. They went down 27 per cent through August this year, compared with a 15 per cent reduction through August a year ago. Processors are reported to have been active in the market in the early part of the fall harvest.

"It is important for producers and handlers to keep in mind that large crops for Idaho and the nation are in prospect this fall," Banks said, "even though estimates are down from Aug. 1. High volume of sustained movement throughout the marketing season is desirable for the Idaho industry."

Idaho's wheat crop, estimated at 56,277,000 bushels, is 47 per cent greater than last year. Even at that high figure it did not turn out as well as had been expected earlier. There was a four per cent decrease from the August estimate.

A potluck supper preceded the installation. The next meeting will be Oct. 19.

Onion Production In Idaho Down

BOISE — Onion production in Idaho and Eastern Oregon is expected to total 2,911,000 hundredweight this year, according to the USDA Crop and Livestock Reporting Service for Idaho.

A crop this size would be 17 per cent less than last year, but 11 per cent more than the 1961-65 average production. The prospective yield, of 410 hundredweight per acre, compares with 500 hundredweight last year and the five-year average of 472 hundredweight.

Weather was generally too hot for top production, however, quality of the crop this year is above average. Pink root and thin stands reduced yields.

Drylot Cowherds Another Step In Beef Production

How much land does it take to run a cow in some of that dry southwestern country where rainfall averages about 20 inches or less a year? Twenty acres? Thirty? Forty?

The day when a man will run his entire herd on less than ten acres may not be too far in the distant future. That will be the day of drylot cowherds.

Experiments are being conducted in several areas of the country. One such location is the Rolling Plains Livestock Station, Spur, Texas. The object of their experiment is to check the effect of rations of three different levels of energy on the per cent calf crop, the weaning weights of the calves, and the longevity of the cows.

One hundred per cent confinement is not the answer but by using drylot for specific periods such as late winter and spring a man can double the size of his cow herd without buying another foot of land if he can learn how to use this technique. Newborn calves could be saved that would have otherwise been lost if drylot had not been used.

There are definite advantages of the drylot system and there are disadvantages but the advantages outweigh the disadvantages by 3 to 1.

The article titled "Beef Herds in Drylot" appears in the Fall issue of the Farm Quarterly on the newsstands in the farm areas.

Earl Spencer, fieldman of the Idaho Crop Improvement Association, will be chairman. The one-day course will be the first of its kind in the history of the state's seed industry.

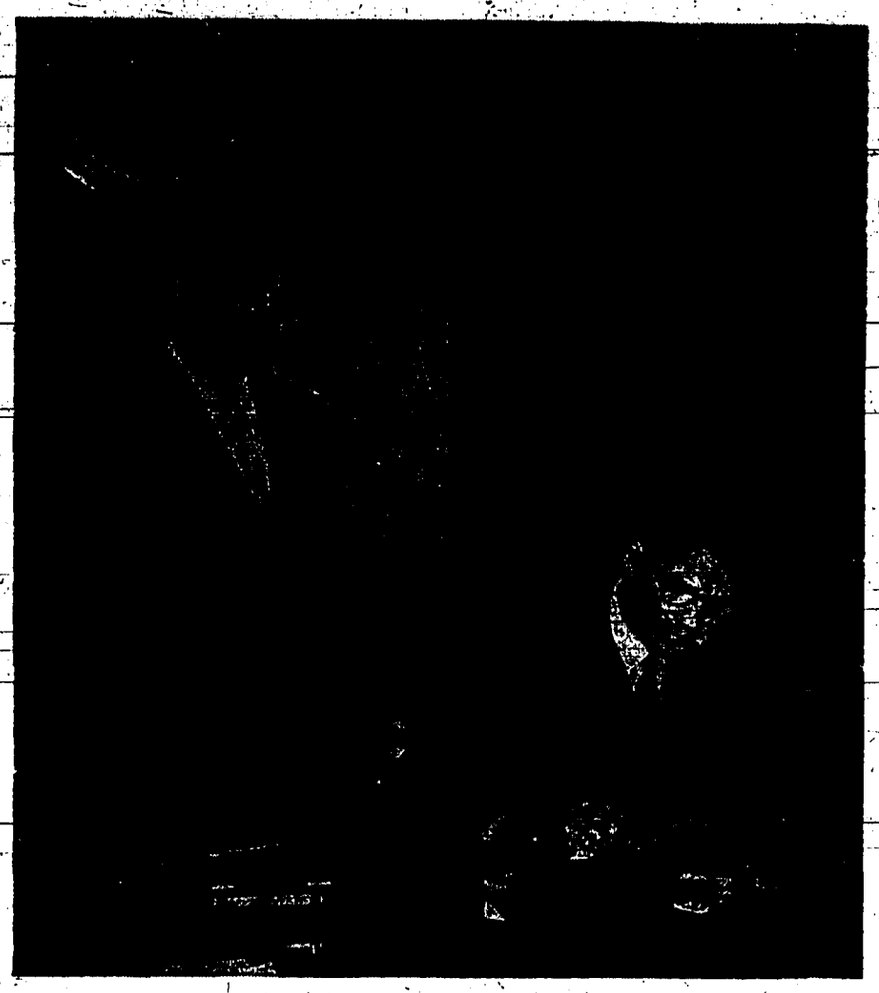

Topics will include production practices, diseases, marketing and the certification program. Seed producers, commercial growers and representatives of other branches of the potato business are invited.

Publication Available On Farm Ponds

CHICAGO—A new and different publication has just come out. It is called "Farm Pond Harvest" a magazine dedicated to the building and maintenance of better farm ponds. It contains articles of interest to all owners wanting a productive body of water and, like a field crop, these little lakes require management practices.

For instance, one article tells of the trouble in store for the owner having "wild fish" in his pond and how they upset the balance of fishlife. The writer goes on to explain the species considered to be "wild" and how to eliminate these undesirables from pond water.

All in all, it's a gathering of information on planning, construction, weed control, fish production, in short—all phases of pond management. You can obtain a copy free of charge just by writing to: Wayne Ligler, Editor, 187 S. Schuyler Ave., Kankakee, Illinois 60901.

Williams, administrator of USDA's Soil Conservation Service. The agreement provides a basis for USDA cooperation with district landowners and operators in soil, water and related resource work. USDA Signs Agreement With Local Soil, Water Conservation District

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has signed a working agreement with the Snake River Soil and Water Conservation District, providing a basis for USDA cooperation with district landowners and operators in soil, water and related resource work.

The new district, headquartered in Twin Falls, was organized in 1966 and covers 110,230 acres in Twin Falls County. About 1,000 farming units are in the district.

Supervisors of the district are Dick Stafford, Kimberly, chairman; Dean Moore, vice president; Lester Naylor, secretary-treasurer, and Lyle Jones, Virgil Wilson, Roy Jesser, Art Reinstein and Keith Rhodes.

Freeman said the district has adopted a long-range program to serve rural and urban people by conserving and developing soil, water, woodland, recreational, wildlife and other natural resources.

D. A. Williams, administrator of USDA's Soil Conservation Service said SCS will provide technical assistance and cooperate with other USDA and Federal agencies, state organizations and local groups to activate the locally directed district program.

This includes cost sharing, credit, technical and other assistance for conservation and development of soil, water, plant and wildlife resources and for flood prevention and watershed protection.

Canadian Wheat Sales May Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's foreign service reported today Canadian wheat sales to Communist countries this crop year may fall below last year.

It said the Soviet Union has contracted to buy 75 million bushels, down from 112 million last year.

A sales contract with Communist China — Canada's No. 2 customer — for deliveries during the second half of this year has not yet been signed, the service said.

With a larger world wheat crop this year — especially in Australia — it was said to be possible that Canadian sales to China will not equal the big sales last year.

Nevada Ram Sale Grosses $15,162.50

ELY—Sale average at the recent Nevada Ram Sale held in Ely amounted to $94.15 on 161 head, with the highest price paid at $195 for a Columbia stud ram according to figures compiled by A. Z. Joy, Cooperative Extension agent for White Pine and Eureka Counties.

The high selling Columbia ram was consigned by Mark Bradford, Spanish Fork, Utah.

The sale was sponsored by the Nevada Woolgrowers Association and the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Nevada.

Care Urged In Use Of Pesticides

SHOSHONE — Agricultural chemicals are essential tools but there is continuing need for extreme care in their use, the county agent reminds farmers and city people.

A national study of pesticide accidents shows that 33 per cent are caused by failure to read and follow the label. Another 25 per cent result from improper storage.

Don't gamble with pesticides, use the right kinds at the right time and in the right way, the county agent notes. Accurate information is on the containers.

Farmers are not the only users of pesticides. Pest-control chemicals also protect forest resources and prevent the spread of human diseases carried by mosquitos and other insects. About 15 per cent of all pesticides are purchased for home and garden use.

The ever increasing home use of control chemicals has special significance because more than half of all pesticide accidents occur in or around the home. Young children are the principal victims. Several general rules for safe use are advocated:

Read and follow the label. Store pesticides in closed, well labeled containers where children and pets cannot reach them. Store application equipment as you do the chemicals. Label each duster and sprayer with the name of the pesticide contents. Do not save or reuse empty containers.

If you do not have trash collection service, crush metal containers and break glass containers. Take them to a public dump or bury them at least 18 inches deep where they will not contaminate water.

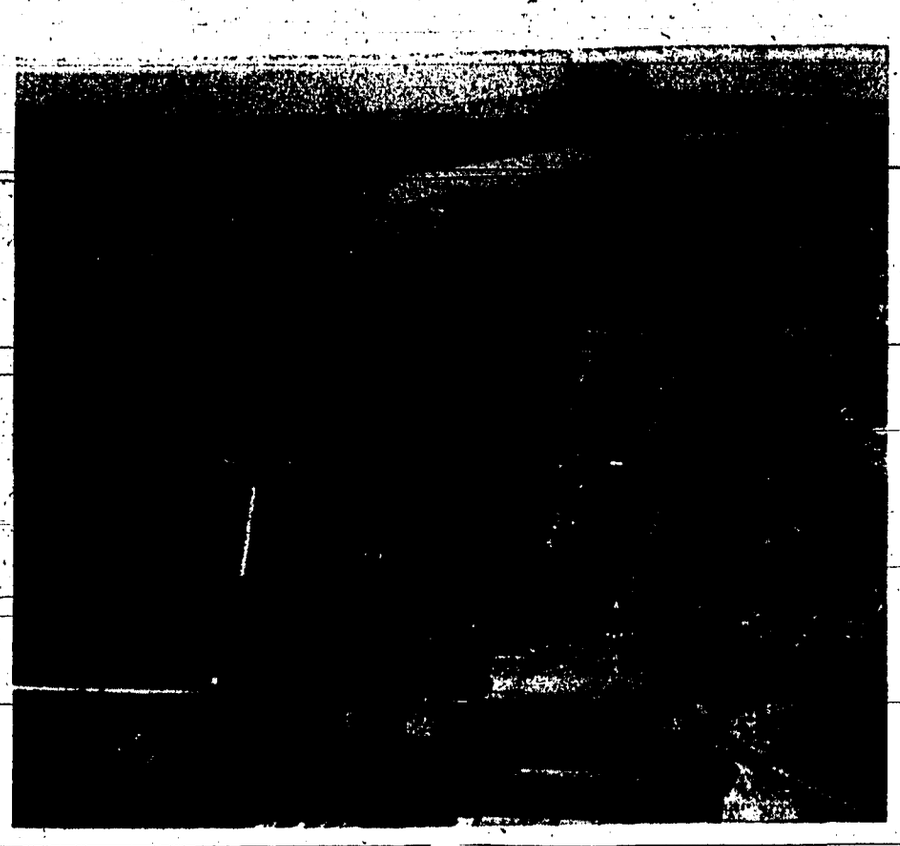

Do not apply more pesticide than the label recommends. Overdoses are dangerous as well as wasteful. Mix or prepare dusts or sprays outdoors or in a well ventilated room. In handling any pesticide avoid contact with the skin. Do not get the material near your mouth, eyes or nose.

If pesticide gets in your eyes, flush them with water for five minutes and see a doctor. If you spill a chemical on your clothes, remove them immediately and wash them before wearing the clothes again.

ACT OKAYED

WASHINGTON — The Agricultural Fair Practice Act of 1967 has been approved by the House Agriculture Committee. The bill would prohibit unfair trade practices by handlers and processors against producers and associations of producers.

A series dedicated to Northwest Farmers

As recently as twenty years ago, the farmer in America was producing enough food to feed fifteen people. Today he's producing enough to feed thirty-five.

That's the reason our food prices aren't higher . . . and why we have so many consumer goods on the market. The farmer has used capital and technology to keep up with the times. The Federal Land Bank has been a leader, and a provider of credit in the farm mortgage field for half a century. We've been a part of the agricultural team. And we're proud of it.

We salute the Northwest farmers . . . Providers of Plenty.

Few industries can match the rate of progress of America's farmers

NEGATIVE DOUBLE USED IN TOURNEY

The takeout double was created by Major Rufus Patton in auction days to allow a player to ask his partner to bid. In the last 15 years most American experts have extended the takeout double to cover many additional bidding situations.

Opening lead—♦ A

These new doubles, called negative and responsive, were invented for the most part by Alvin Roth of this year's American team and were used by two of the three American pairs in World Championship match.

Edgar Kaplan's double of Pablo Ticci's weak vulnerable overcall was for takeout, not business. Sitting North, he undoubtedly would have preferred to double for business but he could not. Perfect defense would have produced a two-trick set.

This negative double of a one heart overcall guarantees four spades so his partner, Norman Kay, jumped to two, and Edgar carried on to game.

The ace of diamonds was opened and diamonds continued. Norman led a spade and let East's nine hold the trick. He won the club return, played his ace of spades, ruffed a diamond and, when East's queen dropped, Norman announced that whichever player held the remaining trump could take it when he pleased and claimed his contract.

It seemed to be an easy game to bid but somehow the Italian methods didn't get there.

The Italian South opened with one spade. Eric Murray likes to bid but he did not try a two heart overcall. North raised to two spades and South passed.

The Italians made the same ten trick Kay did, but game was not bid and the Americans picked up 250 points, worth six International Match Points.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
		1 ♠	Dble
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♦
2 ♠	3 ♦	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠2 ♥K Q 10 8 ♦A Q J 5 4 ♣K 6 5
What do you do now?

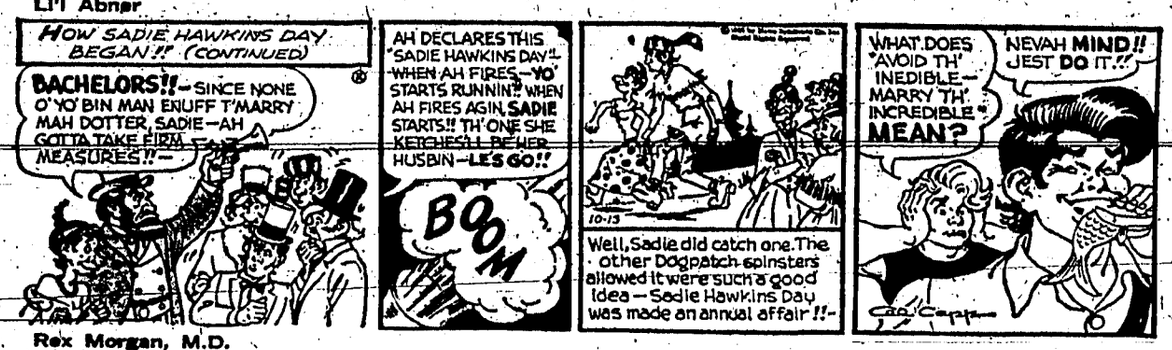

A—Pass. You hope to beat four spades but a double is bad percentage. You will open the king of hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of responding two clubs your partner bids two diamonds after your double. What do you do now?

Sick Phone Calls Scare His Girl

Dear Ele and Walt: Every once in a while this creep calls up and starts to mumble dirty things to my girlfriend. The phone company says it can't trace the call, and it makes me so mad I want to tear the phone out of the wall when she tells me about it. I know it scares her. What, if anything, can you suggest?—Mad Boyfriend.

Dear Boyfriend: Shop around and buy the loudest police whistle you can find. Tell your girlfriend that the moment the anonymous caller starts his lewd murmurs, she should blow the whistle into the mouthpiece with all her lung power and then immediately hang up. If this doesn't discourage him, she'll want to ask her parents about switching to an unlisted telephone number. Such creeps are annoying, but 99 times out of a hundred they're not really dangerous. They phone girls because they're afraid of facing a female.—Ele and Walt.

WORRIED ABOUT SISTER

Dear Ele: I am 17 and have a 15-year-old sister, Becky. A month ago I broke up with my 18-year-old boyfriend, Tom. Now Tom has started to see Becky. I know he doesn't care a thing about her; he is just trying to make me mad. I've dated a lot of boys this past year and plenty of them have tried things, but I never let them get far. The other night I accidentally walked in on Tom and Becky in the den, and I could hardly believe by eyes. Afterward I tried to talk to her, but she said that Tom had told her how cold I was, and that boys didn't like cold girls, and so she didn't want to hear anything I could say. I know she will keep this up because she's very hard headed. Yet if I tell my folks, they'll kill her. So how do I help her?—Tina.

Dear Tina: No matter what you say, Becky will assume it is dictated by personal jealousy and dial out. Tom is obviously competing for the Rat-of-the-Year-Award, so you can't hope to make an impact there. So unless you want to abandon Becky to whatever fate Tom has in store for her; you've got to clue mom and pop in on the facts of life. Yes? No?—Ele.

GRIPE OF THE WEEK

Dear Ele and Walt: I am writing in behalf of all young Americans between the ages of 10 and 25. We are getting sick of being labeled "hippies," "teeny-boppers," and "mini-boppers." Books, magazines, TV programs and movies all seem to drive home one point: there is something wrong in being young. "Teenager" itself is disgusting, not because of its meaning, but because of the way the self-appointed sociologists have irrevocably coupled the word with rioting, irresponsibility, materialism, fast cars, drug abuse, preoccupation with sex, ad infinitum.

Instead of regarding us as freaks and making us the constant subject of tut-tut discussion, and thus making us feel out of place because of our age (which we can't help), why not treat us as fellow human beings? The way some people act, we ought to be in Ripley's Believe It or Not.

Back to the question of labels. Now, what say we divide the so-called adults (when you reach 25, you're automatically adult; before then you're a kid) into categories, and label them:

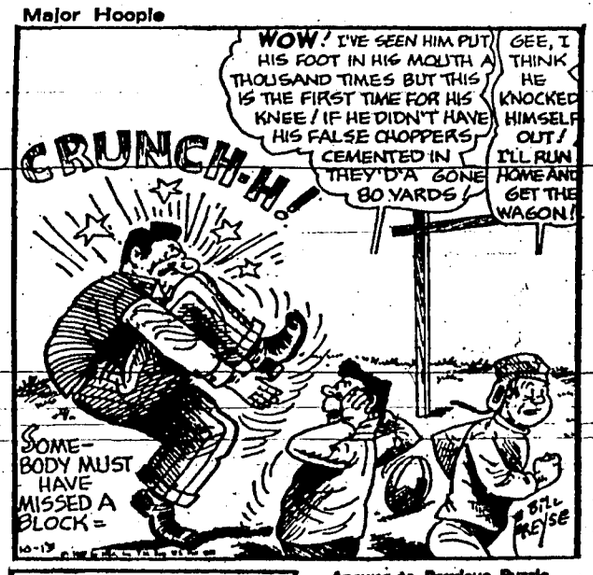

Ages 25 to 35 — Little Momies and Little Daddies.
Ages 35 to 45 — Elders.
Ages 45 to 55 — Podgies.
Ages 55 to 65 — Fossils.
Over 65 — The Popped Generation.

Rather disgusting, isn't it? But then I'm only one of those crazy teenagers — maybe my thoughts are stupid to any one of those important people who have reached the 25-year-milestone.—Vic.

Like to "sound off!" and tell the town how you feel? Share your "Gripe" by writing us in care of this newspaper.

A few hilarious games can really spark up an outdoor party. Ele and Walt have 35 suggestions in their pamphlet "Go-Go Games," that are almost guaranteed to make any outdoor party a success. Medusahead Control Is Explained

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO Moscow—Indications that weed-killing chemicals can be useful in controlling medusahead were reported today by Paul J. Torell, an agronomist at the University of Idaho's Parma branch agricultural experiment station.

He said field tests showed applications of Dowpon, a grass killer, are helpful. They are particularly effective in combination with controlled burning.

Medusahead is a weedy annual grass that infests an estimated 750,000 acres of Idaho range. It has low forage value and crowds out desirable forage species.

"The generally steep and rocky terrain of land infested by medusahead limits the possibilities of reseeding," Torell said. "But even though a large portion of the land cannot be reseeded with present implements, a considerable reseeding capability remains.

"This is particularly true if the weed control necessary to establish forage grass seedlings could be effected by chemical fallow because there are many thousands of acres that could be seeded with a heavy rangeland drill but which could be tilled only with difficulty.

"Preliminary investigations showed that Dowpon has promise as an agent in a chemical fallow treatment. The herbicide regularly gave a high percentage of medusahead kill at economical rates."

The recommendations are: Spray as soon as active growth starts in the spring and before the plant is in the boot stage. Use about three pounds of Dowpon in water at a volume of 10 gallons per acre. This treatment will kill 98 per cent or more of a medusahead stand.

Torrell said a difficulty with chemical fallow treatment is the dense mass of dead herbage. This can be overcome, he said, by controlled burning. A fire at the proper time consumes the litter and permits surviving seed to reach the soil. Seed germinating in the fall or spring, following a burn, is vulnerable to the herbicide.

Consultation with fire control officials and burning strictly in accordance with their directions is urged.

Crop Report Indicates Record Highs

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earlier forecasts for record high output of most major farm crops is borne out in the government's new prediction for corn, wheat, soybeans, sorghum grains, rice, sugar cane and peanuts.

The Agriculture Department's crop report based on Sept. 1 prospects clearly indicates the record setting will be due largely to greater acreage rather than to boosted yields per acre.

Corn prospects are for a crop of nearly 4.7 billion bushels from 7.8 per cent more acreage than last year, with an indicated average yield of 76.5 bushels per acre. That would be higher than last year and the five-year acreage.

Prospects are for a 2.7 per cent rise in rice output over last year — to more than 90 million hundredweight — on fractionally less acreage.

But the predicted records for more than 1.5 billion bushels of wheat, the first billion-bushel soybean crop and 791 million bushels of sorghum grains will be gleaned from acreage increases of 20.3 per cent for wheat, 9.5 per cent for soybeans and 17.9 per cent for sorghums. And the yield-per-acre for all three are slightly lower than they were in 1966.

Dean Of Engineering Lauds Water Resources In Idaho And Northwest

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow — "Cheap hydropower is an advantage to the Northwest and irrigation is indispensible to Idaho's economy," said Dr. H. Sidwell Smith, new dean of the College of Engineering at the University of Idaho.

Dr. Smith, a native of Iowa, compared water resources in the Northwest and the Midwest in regards to agriculture, transportation, recreation, conservation, and pollution. He termed the Northwest "better prepared" in all categories — especially conservation and recreation.

He said that irrigation in the Northwest seems to involve state and federal government to a far higher degree than midwestern drainage reclamation.

"The Northwest's chief advantages over other regions of the country has been cheap hydropower. The large number of feasible hydropower sites and the high cost of fossil fuel have combined to relegate the manpower generation to secondary importance," explained Dean Smith.

He pointed out some factors which may well change the situation in the near future. Today, there are rew remaining feasible undeveloped hydropower sites and limited undeveloped potential at existing sites in the United States. According to Dr. Smith, the high level of present construction costs is undermining the traditional economic advantage of hydropower, and construction and operating cost ratio is much higher than in thermal power stations.

"The advent of muclear power which is independent of regional fuel hydro factors will diminish the power cost differential between the Midwest and the Northwest," he said.

"These factors," Dr. Smith pointed out, "do not indicate any lessening of the importance of existing hydro-power capacity in the Northwest. They do suggest, however, that the hydro-power aspect of the Northwest water resources may assume relatively less weight in the future than it has in the past."

Idaho is expected to enjoy the first fruits of slack water transportation when the Columbia-Snake River system is opened to Lewiston in 1972. In Dr. Smith's estimation, geography and existing development will preclude penetration beyond Lewiston.

"No doubt the system will be a great benefit to the Oregon, Washington and Idaho grain producing areas that lie near the river valleys. It is nice to think that gasoline prices in the region might even be lower as a result of waterborne petroleum products," he quipped.

Corn Stover Silage Said To Be Cheap Feed

In the current (Fall) issue of The Farm Quarterly the article "Two Crops From a Cornfield" tells why a Chapin, Ill. farmer, F. W. Lakamp, has made his last corn silage.

"Why make corn silage when you can make stover silage and add your corn back to it the way you want?" he asks. Lakamp harvests 50 acres of corn, then he shuts down the combine, attaches a scythe and proceeds back over the same acres cutting the stalks. Lakamp feels he has been successful in making stover silage because he has had no spoilage or mold.

Lakamp calls stover silage his free feed; he says, "This is a cheap feed—something that is normally wasted." The estimated 250 tons of chopped stover which was put into the silo in mid-October kept 70 cows for 140 days. No other feed or protein supplement was fed the cows.

Many farmers don't feel the same way. The busiest time of the year is corn-harvest time and manpower and equipment are at a premium. A solution to the equipment problem, which is still in experimental stages, could reduce the corn and stover harvesting operation to a single step. The grain is shelled and placed in a grain tank and the stover is chopped and put into a trailing wagon.

There is no doubt that farmers will be looking at corn stover silage as a way to move into beef production if the equipment question can be solved.

An estimated 40 per cent of the nutrients from an acre of corn are in the stalks and leaves, this could be a potential profit of $40 to $75 per acre through beef cows.

Corn stover silage is low in energy, thus limiting its use as a feed, but by adding corn the silage can be changed to a finished ration. The details of this informative article are featured in the Fall issue, at the newsstands in the farming areas.

Ricks College Harvests Its First Crops

REXBURG — Ricks College has harvested its first crop from land owned by the school.

Dr. Daniel S. Hess, administrative assistant to President John L. Clarke, said 60 acres of potatoes were harvested and sold to Rogers Brothers.

"They told us that our potatoes were some of the finest they received in the valley and for that we were very pleased," Dr. Hess said.

There were 100 acres of grain harvested. Ray L. Pocock rented the land from the college for the potato and grain production.

The land is just south of the school, extending past Radio Station KRXX. Part of the ground will be used for future building expansion at Ricks.

The land also will be used by the Agriculture Department at the college as part of the department's course of studies.

The ground was purchased from the City of Rexburg, and wells were dug and a water sprinkling system established. The land was prepared and put into production this year.

"We are happy with the project and feel it will benefit Ricks in a number of ways," Dr. Hess said.

MOSCOW—John Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Meyer, Buhl, has receievd a $200 scholarship, University of Idaho officials announced Thursday. He is a student at the University and won scholastic honors at Filer High School last spring.

Digestive Systems Of Stock Differ

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Walter Haldeman of The Pennsylvania State University says a feed suitable for one kind of farm animal may be unsatisfactory for another. Digestive systems differ.

According to a Penn State handbook on livestock feeding, timothy hay is standard fare for horses. In dairy cows it's constipating and reduces milk flow.

Cattle like some cottonseed meal in their rations. But when fed to hogs it's poisonous. Soybeans and peanuts are relished by swine, but soft pork results if market hogs eat too much.

A ration of only cracked corn, ground oats, cottonseed meal, silage and hay suits beef cows. Dairy cow rations, though, may contain 20 plant feeds. For fattening steers, a little soybean or linseed meal with corn and alfalfa hay makes good feed.

Ground wheat is good grain for horses, but horsemen never feed it alone. The reason is that it makes a sticky, compact mass in the stomach, difficult for digestive juices to penetrate. The result is colic and constipation. Add cut hay to the wheat for bulk, and the mixture makes suitable horse feed.

Outlook For Migrant Farm Worker Dim

PORTLAND (AP) — Three persons concerned about the future of farm workers—but from widely divergent viewpoints—came to a unanimous conclusion Wednesday night: The outlook for the migrant farm worker is pretty dim.

The three participated Wednesday night in a panel on the problems of agricultural workers, as part of the annual Catholic Conference on Industrial, Social and Ecumenical Relations.

Andy Imutan, boycott coordinator for the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, said that striking vineyard workers in California have won some concessions, but their lives are still bleak.

Frank Bergon, a Madera, Calif., farmer who owns 1,000 acres and is president of the Western Cotton Growers Association and of the Federal Land Bank, said automation is forcing family farms out of business. He said farming today is a battle for economic survival.

The third speaker, Rev. Austin Morris, a member of the faculty of the University of San Francisco Law School on leave to work on farm labor legislation in Washington, D.C., said the migrant worker is losing the overall legal battle.

Father Morris said farm workers have been "deluded for 18 years" into thinking that Congress would include them under legislation which protects workers in other industries.

Imutan said farm workers have the same goals as farmers: "to give our children a better future, a better tomorrow."

Cows Average 38 Pounds Of Butterfat

Dairy cows on production testing in Unit 2 of the Twin Falls County Dairy Herd Improvement Association during September averaged 38 pounds of butterfat per cow and 1091 pounds of milk, reports County Agent Donald Youtz.

Production figures include all cows on test, including dry cows. The September report of Testing Supervisor Thomas Bergstrom, Twin Falls, showed that 1,342 cows were on test, with 1,206 in production, and 136 dry cows.

In the large herds of over 50 cows, Blair Hall, Twin Falls, had the high production average of 47 pounds of butterfat, 1,400 pounds of milk, with 54 cows milking of a total of 61 cows. Other large high producing herds with butterfat, milk, total cows and number in production are: Clyde Wright, Filer, 46, 1,386, 68 and 60; T. W. Richmond, Buhl, 45, 1,324, 83 and 77; Lawrence Kalbfleisch, Filer, 44, 1,270, 62 and 51; Walter Matthiesen, Filer, 41, 903, 117 and 113; Vernon Lassen, Filer, 35, 795, 55 and 54, and Irvin Ehlers, Twin Falls, 39, 1,086, 71 and 62.

TWO SHEEPHERDERS are moving sheep to winter pasture. These young sheep, owned by Jack Thomas, Idaho Falls, are en route to the Robert Norris farm, east of Twin Falls, via back roads from Kimberly where they were unloaded from railroad cars. Each year Mr. Thomas ships sheep to the Twin Falls area where the sheep are pastured at various farms throughout the winter months.

The Green Thumb

by GEORGE ABRAHAM

CONTROL INSECTS WITH INSECTS: Home gardeners who grow wormy apples and other fruits will be interested in a letter I received from an amateur fruit grower who used to grow wormy fruit until he switched to biological insect control.

"I lacked the apparatus and didn't want to use poison sprays on fruit to be eaten. I ordered some trichogramma, the microscopic natural enemy of the apple worm and all other members of the Lepidoptera order of insects.

The trichogramma destroys the eggs (which hatch into harmful worms). The natural enemy will not feed on or harm vegetation, and are perfectly harmless to everything except the undesirable Lepidopterous eggs. You should tell your readers about this safe approach to insect control."

GREEN THUMB NOTE: We're pleased you had so good results controlling apple pests with natural parasites. Trichogramma is an efficient egg parasite on many lepidopterous insects (moths and butterflies).

This parasite is being used with considerable success in citrus groves and cotton fields in California. Lady bird beetles have also been used for aphid control, particularly in melon fields in some areas. Theoretically, it would be possible to control the coddling moth (the apple worm you bite into) and aphids with well-timed releases of parasites.

However, as yet such a program is not adequate. In addition to the coddling moth we have other just as important pests such as the apple maggot, plum curculio and other species NOT controllable with Trichogramma or the lady bird beetle. For some of these pests no biological control agents are known. We therefore rely on pesticides, much as we hate to.

We're all hoping that biological insect control in the home fruit and vegetable garden will take the place of present methods. Until that time comes we'll have to rely on chemical means for the most part.

LILAC SEED PODS: Don't be concerned about those brown seed pods on the tips of lilac stems. If you have the ambition and don't like the looks, cut them off. If you don't remove them, you'll still get plenty of blooms next spring.

CAUTION: If you do cut off the old blossom head, do not prune down too far as you're apt to remove buds for next year's crop.

HOLLY PRODUCES NO BERRIES? If your plants produced no berries it could be due to plant being a male, or lack of pollination. Sometimes the blooms of one holly come on at a different time than the other, and pollination does not occur. Sometimes you can chemically make a female bush set using naphthaline acetic acid, found in garden stores.

Use either the aerosol cans, or mix a solution of one-fourth of teaspoonful in a quart of water. Stir well, spray at least once a day for several days when blossoms are open. A week or, two after the flowers fade, green berries begin to form.

This works only when the female blooms are sprayed. You can't make a male flower produce berries. One male plant will pollinate eight to ten female plants.

When trees are 3 or 4 years of age, you can expect berries to start forming. Incidentally, cut holly branches last longer for Christmas decorations if you spray them with the hormone spray mentioned above. Some use women's hair spray to keep the berries from dropping at Christmas time.

WILL PLANT CANCER AFFECT HUMANS? Recently, I was asked if those ugly overgrowths you see on willows and maples will cause human cancer?

We stated there was no relationship between those knotty growths on trees and human cancer. While it's not possible to get cancer from plant tumors, scientists are using plant cancers in an effort to understand better the nature of complex animal tumors.

There is a great deal of similarity between plant and animal tumors, and there is no basic biochemical difference between plants and animals. Plant and animal tumors both result from the invasion of the same agents: viruses, bacteria, chemicals, radiation and genetic abnormalities.

Don't worry about those ugly growths you see on the trunk of your trees. They are due to an imbalance of some sort and should not be tampered with.

TRIMMING FORSYTHIA BUSHES: An overgrown forsythia bush is a mess to trim. Often the canes are interwoven with dead and live wood. When this happens, the only thing you can do is get out the pruning shears and give the bush a real clipping.

Clip out the oldest and all dead wood, close to the ground. When you get through there won't be much left. Leave some young green canes to carry on for next year's growth.

One reason why forsythia does not bloom is low winter temperature (15 degrees below zero) which injures the buds. You can detect low temperature injury to flower buds easily: branches near the ground flower well while those near the top fail to bloom.

Those which fail to flower after exposure to 15 degrees below are Showy Border Forsythia (F. intermedia) and the varieties Spectabilis, Lynwood Gold, Spring Glory, Beatrix Farrandr as well as the Weeping Forsythia (F. suspensa).

If you've been having bud trouble, due to winter cold, try growing the somewhat less showy, but hardier, Lorean forsythia, F. ovata.

WHITE MARIGOLDS: No one has yet produced a white marigold, although real progress toward a pure white has been made. If you happen to produce such a thing you have a chance to pick up $10,000, so be on the lookout for one of Mother Nature's genetic accidents ("mutation"). It might happen right in your own backyard.

ORNAMENTAL PEPPERS: This flashy little house plant is ideal as a Christmas gift. Seed started now will give you plants for the holiday. Some are in fruit now. Grow the ornamental pepper in a sunny window. It won't bear peppers if grown in a shaded window.

Remove dried peppers as soon as they start to get that way so new ones will come along. Likes a uniform supply of water. When leaves get covered with a black mold ("Coal dust") it means aphids are present. Spray with nicotine sulphate or malathion after you hose off the unsightly material.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D.R. of Fairfield: "Last Easter I received two potted florists' lilies. After they blossomed, they were planted outdoors as you suggested. Right now they have four big shoots and 5 blossoms on them, larger than the original plants had. What should be done with the plants for Easter?"

Leave the plants outdoors where they are. Easter lilies are perfectly hardy and will bloom for you each year in early fall. It's not necessary to put any sort of mulch on for protection. After three or four years, you may have to dig the plants, divide and replant them.

R.F. of Jerome: "Concerning those green tomatoes your readers complain about, I'm glad to grow as many as we do. We pick ours green and wrap each one in a piece of newspaper. They are stored in the cellar and we often have tomatoes at Thanksgiving time. Be sure to look them over first. My neighbor pulls up the whole vine by roots and hangs them upside down in his cellar. The tomatoes stay fresh for many weeks that way. The fruit lasts a lot longer if stored in a cool, dark place. Your bulletin on caring for green tomatoes is excellent. Everybody should have a copy.

(Green Thumb Note: If you'd like a copy of our guide on using green tomatoes, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for Tricks for Keeping Green Tomatoes. It's got a lot of good tips and recipes for your green thumb library.)

D. B. of Malta: "I have a clump of birch 20 years old. Some of the limbs on top have started to die. Could we cut the tops now, and would a spray help?"

You probably have the bronze birch borer, a small flat-headed grub that feeds just under the bark. Infection starts at the top of the tree and works downward.

CONTROL: Cut the tops back to live tissue, and burn. Next spring be sure to spray the tree with DDT plus malathion just as the buds open and apply again in two weeks. Aphids cause a sticky sap on leaves now. Malathion checks these.

Another pest is the leaf miner, a tiny larva that feeds on leaves from May to October. Systems are the answer to leaf miners. Apply one dose of Cygon as a soil drench around the base of tree in spring. It will last one season and does a good job on leaf miners, plus other birch pests.

Production Of Corn For Grain At Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's early harvest-season report today estimated the production of corn for grain at a record high of 4,717,422,000 bushels, up 15 per cent from the previous record last year.

The wheat crop was estimated at 1,553,741,000 bushels, also a record high up 7 per cent from last year.

The important soybean crop was put at a record 993,715,000 bushels, up 7 per cent from the previous record last year.

LIBERTY, N. C. — W. Lee Meredith, member of the executive Committee of the National Milk Producers Federation, died recently in North Carolina. He was founder of the North Carolina Milk Producers Federation.

Drop In Farm Income Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Farm Bureau Federation predicts farm income this year may fall as much as 10 per cent below last year. The government expects a smaller reduction.

"Larger product volume, lower prices and higher costs add up to glum income prospects for U.S. farmers," the farm organization said in a news letter to members.
